Prices climb to 6-month high

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Opposition MPs demanded the government abandon plans to increase the price of gas to a $1.30 a gallon after Statistics Canada today reported inflation climbed to a six-month high of 9.6 per cent in September.

The government agency reported that higher fuel oil and gasoline prices coupled with increased clothing prices forced up the consumer price index almost a full percentage point which in turn boosted the inflation rate to 9.6 per cent.

This is the highest level since April when the 12-month inflation rate stood at 9.8 per cent.

At the moment, Canada's inflation level is below those of many of the non-Communist world powers. In Britain for example, latest figures show prices rising at 16 per cent a year, inflation in the United States is now running at more than 12 per cent a year and France is reporting a 10.5-per-cent annual increase in its cost of living.

The government increased crude oil prices by a $1 to $13.75 a barrel in August and less than a month later gas prices at the pump climbed by about four cents a gallon, hovering around $1.

"This increase is government made and is a direct result of higher energy costs and the govenment's $1-a-barrel increase," said New Democratic Party finance critic Bob Rae.

"If the government is really serious about fighting inflation, and they say it is their number one priority, then they should stop this forced march to world prices," said the Toronto MP.

Liberal finance critic Herb Gray demanded "the government change their direction immediately and abandon plans to increase the price of gasoline to a $1.30 a gallon."

Prime Minister Joe Clark and Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn are reported to be trying to hammer out an energy deal with Alberta to increase fuel oil and gasoline prices in exchange for an increase in the oil excise tax.

Hnatyshyn refuses to confirm or deny the reports and says he will be announcing an oil pricing agreement as soon as possible.

Statistics Canada's consumer price index, which the government uses as its most common measure of inflation, stood last month at 194.5. This means a so-called basket of goods and services — devised by the agency to represent the spending of a typical household — would have cost $100 in 1971 but now costs $194.50.

The higher energy prices, higher rents and mortgages plus increased prices for electricity, domestic gas and for local transit and taxi fares were responsible for forcing the index, excluding food, up by 1.1 per cent last month.

Specials on selected air fares and for new 1979 North American model cars prevented the non-food index from climbing more than 8.6 per cent, an increase from the 8.3 per cent registered in the previous 12 months.

Lower prices for fresh fruit and vegetables resulted in a marginal 0.2 per cent increase in the food index in September following a decline of 0.7 per cent a month earlier.

Boston buses stoned

BOSTON (AP) — White students overturned two cars and stoned two school buses carrying black students in East Boston today and dozens of white youths marched on city hall in the third straight day of racial violence involving city high school students.

Police said the first fracas began when the buses were stoned before classes opened at East Boston High School. Further violence erupted when about 150 white students marched out of school to protest a racial incident Wednesday and to demand more security at the school, officers said.

Windows also were smashed on two police cars, and three students from East Boston High were arrested, authorities said. The school has about 1,200 students, 80 per cent of them white.

The marchers were met at city hall by a line of 25 policemen wearing riot gear who blocked them from entering the building.

East Boston, an Italian-American neighborhood, has been largely unaffected by court-ordered busing that has disrupted schools in the other parts of the city for the last five years. Under the busing order, students are transported by bus to other school districts to achieve racial integration.

'Real cost' of oil up 50% by '85?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Energy Department, adopting the generally pessimistic outlook for world oil supplies espoused by the CIA, has drastically increase its estimate of how fast prices will rise during the next decade.

In a new estimate presented to Congress Wednesday, the department projected that by 1985 world oil prices may rise by as much as 50 per cent in "real" dollars — that is, over and above the general inflation rate.

By 1990, according to what the department called its "most likely" predictions, "real" world oil prices will increase by at least 30 per cent and perhaps as much as 90 per cent.

In addition to direct effects on consumer prices, the new estimate has far-reaching implications for President Carter's energy proposals now being considered by Congress, as the projected price increases are significantly higher than had been assumed until now.

As if to punctuate the gloomy forecast, oil industry spokesmen reported today that Iraq has raised the price of its oil about 10 per cent, becoming fifth member of the organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to announce a price increase in recent days.

The Iraqi move itself probably will have no direct effect on prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States as Iraq sells mostly to Japan and Europe, but the combined impact of it and the other increases probably will add a penny or two a gallon at the gasoline pump and on heating bills.

Energy Department analysts revealed their new estimate at a House intelligence subcommittee hearing called to compare their previous forecast of world oil trends with the latest CIA forecast.

The just-declassified CIA estimate, based on a judgment that members of the OPEC cartel will constrain production during the early 1980s, predicted world demand will outrun supply by 1982. An Energy Department projection, prepared last December and released in July, assumed that OPEC production would increase to meet demand through the decade.

But the department analysts said Wednesday they had revised their previous estimate.

Also Wednesday, after months of wrangling, the Senate overwhelmingly approved legislation giving the White House standby gasoline rationing authority in a severe crisis. The measure now goes back to the House, where a closer vote is expected.

The legislation is only to be used in the event of a major crisis and falls far short of the broad mandate the president had originally sought.

Meanwhile, a British journalist says Middle Eastern oil exporting countries are lying when they say reduced production is forcing them to keep increasing the price of oil.

Jon Kimche, an expert on the Middle East, said in a telephone interview from Dorking, England, there now is more oil than the market can absorb and "oil tankers are again getting instructions to steam slowly because there's nowhere to put the oil."

Kimche, interviewed for the CBC Radio program As It Happens, said oil production by most OPEC countries is up markedly from last year despite recent reports to the contrary.

"We get reports now from one OPEC country or another of cutting back supplies ... but they are not cutting back at all and have no intention of cutting back."

He said the major oil companies in the West are going along with the deception "because ... their revenue figures ... have gone beyond all dreams."

Bill gives pension to surviving spouse

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would allow a spouse to continue receiving an allowance after the other pensioner spouse dies was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Health Minister David Crombie.

The allowance now terminates six months after the death of the spouse receiving old age security payments. It is paid to persons between 60 and 65 years of age.

The government wants to ensure that widows and widowers are protected in the event of a spouse's death until the survivor becomes eligible for regular old age security payments.

The bill would also remove the imprisonment test so benefits to pensioners and their spouses would not be interrupted if one were sentenced to prison.

Crombie has said he wants to see better provisions for single women and those living alone when, for example, a spouse is sentenced to prison.

The estimated cost of the extra benefits is $4.6 million.

Also, Veterans Affairs Minister Allan McKinnon said earlier Wednesday in the Commons the government will soon introduce legislation to broaden the pension benefits for widows of disable veterans.

He said the bill will go part way to meeting demands for widows of veterans with 48-per-cent disability pensions or less.

Meantime, a statement from the health department which accompanied the bill introduced Wednesday, said more than 2,200 persons would receive the spouses allowance benefits.

Police to probe fake letters

By PAUL NICHOLSON

Attorney-General Garde Gardom Wednesday instructed Victoria city police to investigate forged letters-to-the-editor to a Victoria newspaper.

Gardom made the announcement in a terse press release with little explanation.

"Questions have been raised concerning an alleged forgery which appeared in a Victoria newspaper," Gardom said.

"I wish to advise that after consultation with the assistant deputy minister, criminal justice division, the Victoria city police force has been instructed to carry out an investigation into these allegations."

Gardom was referring to a letter published by The Daily Colonist March 20 over the name of Gordon Townsend which was highly critical of the NDP.

Townsend, a regular writer to newspapers and an ardent NDP supporter, immediately disassociated himself from the letter and both newspapers printed apologies.

At the time he resigned, Greig was on loan to the provincial secretary's ministry working as an information officer.

Greig has refused to comment on his resignation or the forged letter either to the press or during a personal appeal from Bennett.

He would say only that he resigned for personal reasons.

Arnett, now in private consulting business, called a press conference to denounce angrily allegations by Vancouver Sun columnist Marjorie Nichols that he was present when one phoney letter-to-the editor plot was discussed.

Nichols made the allegation in a column.

Nichols said sources told her three other persons were present when the phoney letter scheme was hatched and named Jack Kelly (the caucus re-

Gift of the gab job search asset

TORONTO (CP) — The most important asset a job-hunter can have is the gift of gab, a national survey of major Canadian employers says.

The University and College Placement Association — which helps Canada's 150,000 annual university and college graduates find jobs — issued the survey results Wednesday, detailing the qualities that employers seek.

Having high marks is not even mentioned in the top 17 qualities.

"Marks are often the last thing they look at," said Wayne Gartley, the association's executive director. "They're looking for an all-round kind of person."

Topping the list was the ability to communicate, followed by willingness to take initiative and accept responsibility. Leadership potential and motivation also ranked high.

Intelligence was listed as the sixth most important quality, preceded by ability to communicate, willingness to take initiative, willingness to accept responsibility, leadership potential, and ambition.

RCMP officer lied — judge

Judge Gilbert Hogg made the accusation before dismissing a charge of obstructing a peace officer against the 53-year-old owner of the Sidney Hotel.

Roland Paquette was charged following an incident Oct. 5, 1978, in the beer parlor of his hotel. One of two RCMP officers who entered the establishment claimed he was grabbed by Paquette.

"Constable Bottrell completely destroyed himself on cross-examination," the judge continued. "In my opinion, that officer lied in the witness box and I reject his evidence totally.

"I cannot understand how this charge got beyond the prosecutors' office," he said.

At one point during the trial, Hogg directed that a transcript of a portion of Bottrell's testimony be sent to Attorney-General Garde Gardom as well as to Bottrell's superintendent.

The order was made in connection with questioning by defence lawyer H.A.D. Oliver of Vancouver concerning words used by Bottrell to Paquette following the morning adjournment.

At one point, the deputy sheriff on duty in the courtroom was put on the stand to testify as to what Bottrell said. Oliver also requested the judge read the perjury section of the Criminal Code of Canada to Bottrell during the questioning.

"The remark Bottrell was alleged to have made to Paquette was 'I hope you pay a lot for this lawyer, Rollie.' "

Paquette said the incident which resulted in the charge occurred about 10:30 p.m. when the pub was nearly full with 235 people. He said he was seated with about half a dozen members of the local Rotary Club when he saw one RCMP officer come in through the back door and another through the front. Paquette testified he went up to one of the officers and asked why they were there and, despite repeated questioning, was never answered.

Paquette denied that one

Rain, hail burst dam

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — At least 25 persons were reported dead or missing after a freak storm of rain and hail burst a river dam in northeastern South Africa and sent water rushing across two farms.

Seven children on one farm near the dam on the Elands River were swept away and six of their bodies were recovered, a Johannesburg newspaper said.

Two men washed out of their huts were also swept away after the sudden downpour, The Star said.

Taxi 'weapon' in maiming

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Cab driver Roger David Allain, 27, of Kamloops, was sentenced in British Columbia Supreme Court today to 18 months in prison after being convicted of criminal negligence in a car-ramming incident that will likely leave a man maimed for life.

Allain also was convicted of leaving the scene of an accident and had his driver's licence suspended for three years by Mr. Justice George Murray who said the case was the worst example of criminal negligence he has heard.

Court was told the incident on the Kamloops Indian Reserve adjacent to this Interior city occurred after Allain had an argument with a passenger in a car driven by Russell Casimir during the early morning of Sept. 29, 1978.

Witnesses said Allain rammed his cab into the Casimir vehicle several times. At one point, Casimir braked hard, then the attacking cab sideswiped his vehicle, ran in and out of a ditch and kept going.

A few minutes later, Casimir got out of his vehicle and was standing behind it when Allain's cab, running without lights, slammed into him.

Court was told he has had 10 operations, spent four months in hospital, and still uses crutches to walk. His doctor said Casimir will probably have a permanent disability.

Allain walked into the local RCMP station and asked who he had killed. Police testified he couldn't believe that someone was still alive after the incident.

Rain and gale force winds battered the north coast during the night as a rapidly developing storm moved northward past the Queen Charlottes. Some rain was falling over the south coast while a high pressure ridge kept skies mainly clear in the interior. The rain will move slowly inland as the storm drifts into the Gulf of Alaska. More rain and gales are forecast for Friday as another disturbance heads for the coast.

Winter games still wanted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A federal government decision not to provide any money for the building of sport facilities if either Vancouver or Calgary is awarded the 1988 Winter Olympic Games has not discouraged the Vancouver Olympic committee in its bid.

"The fact that they said they would not give any direct grants doesn't affect us a lot," said Jack Lee, the committee's public relations officer.

"We made up our submission on the grounds there wouldn't be any federal grants."

Federal Sport Minister Steve Paproski made the announcement Wednesday in Ottawa, saying the Conservatives would not copy the previous Liberal government's policy of paying one-third of costs if provincial and municipal governments share the remaining two-thirds.

Lee said the budget the Vancouver committee has drawn up should be enough to finance the Winter Olympics without the help of federal funds, although he said the committee has considered approaching the provincial government for provincial lottery revenue or negotiating for the establishment of a special Olympic lottery.

Vancouver's $80 million budget is miniscule when compared with Calgary's $250-million bank roll (backed heavily by Alberta's Heritage Fund), but Lee said Vancouver would be able to operate at a lower budget because many of the major facilities are already available for competition.

No work, no food tactic probed at special school

VANCOUVER (CP) — Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy said Wednesday she has ordered a government investigation into the practice of punishing retarded students at a school in Surrey by depriving them of food.

Mrs. McCarthy said she was surprised and shocked by reports on the subject and ordered her ministry and the education ministry to investigate.

The practice was described by Doug Denholm, executive director of the Vancouver-Richmond Association for the Mentally Retarded, as a prison camp tactic that is a march back into the 19th Century.

Surrey school board officials have said retarded students at Simon Cunningham elementary school are sometimes deprived of lunches and snacks when they do not complete assignments.

School superintendent Jack Evans said it is a proven method of behavior modification. He also said the 11 retarded children in the school are not being starved or subjected to cruel or unusual punishment.

School officials said that of the 11 aged nine to 20 in the two special classes, only two can speak intelligibly.

The question of the children being deprived of food was raised Monday night at a Surrey school board meeting by the sister of an 18-year-old female student at the school who is severely retarded.

"For two days in a row my sister's lunch kit came home with the thermos full of juice," she said in an interview later.

"When we asked the school what had happened, we were told that her lunch was put in a snack bin and distributed among other children because she hadn't finished her assignments. The teachers told us it was part of their program.

The mother of a 17-year-old retarded student said her son was incapable of understanding why he was not given his lunch.

Evans said food is used as a reward for students who complete chores such as hanging up their coats and washing their hands. The object of the program is to teach self-care to the students.

Problems laid to lazy labor

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)— High interest rates are not hurting Canada as much as workers not wanting to do an honest day's work, says the top man in Canada's construction industry.

Ian MacInnes, board chairman of the Canadian Construction Association, says only minor construction programs have been affected by recent interest rate increases.

The indolent attitude of many Canadians is having a greater effect, he told a news conference here Tuesday. Many expect to work six months and live off unemployment insurance or welfare for the rest of the year, he said.

He said people in other countries criticize Canadians for striving for a situation where all workers live in semi-retirement.

Despite Canada's wealth of energy and natural resources, Canadian workers must return to the work ethic and produce an honest day's work for a day's pay, based on international production levels.

However, MacInnes discounted pessimistic forecasts about the economy, saying: "It will take some terrible mismanagement for this country to face a depression."

He accused the former Liberal government of mismanaging the economy during its term, and particularly blamed it for raising the national deficit.

"The Liberals were the prime cause of inflation in this country and the lack of confidence in it."

MacInnes also said the slump in the Canadian economy is more noticeable in eastern provinces, where productivity is running between 20 and 30 per cent below capacity.

Fire season extended

B.C.'s forest fire season has been extended 15 days to Oct. 31 because a large number of fires in the province are still burning, Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Wednesday.

Waterland said the situation is not serious but it would be unwise to shut down fire suppression crews while 140 fires are still burning.

Not the smoke of peace

The Mowachaht Indian Band at Gold River on northern Vancouver Island has got pluck. And if the federal Department of Indian Affairs has any, it will let the band's proposed pollution control bylaw for its reserve lands come into being.

The pollution control bylaw is the Mowachaht's last stand in a half decade of frustrations in trying to have the Tahsis Company take action to curb pollution from its pulp and paper mill.

Chief Heywassuh even took the band's grievances to Denmark earlier this year. After an hour long meeting with officials of the East Asiatic Company, the chief was told that East Asiatic owned only 50 per cent of Tahsis shares and that he would have to take the matter up with Tahsis' management.

Tahsis has a long term agreement with Indian Affairs and the band for the use of 20 acres of reserve land. But the terms of the lease are occasionally renegotiated. The lease expired more than a year ago and the band says it has no intention of renegotiating until action is taken on pollution and other questions.

When the mill was built 12 years ago, the reserve land adjacent to the mill was vacant. But under the agreement reached with Tahsis for the use of Indian land provision was made for the employment of natives. With that undertaking about 150 Nootkas moved from Friendly Cove to their present home on the edge of the Muchalet Inlet.

Band officials say that the company now employs only about a dozen Indians. Instead of jobs and a higher standard of living, they say all they received was health hazards and damage to the surrounding environment.

Dust fallout from a giant smoke stack is blamed for ear, nose, eye and throat problems. A former chief noted that the dust particles are so bad you have to keep doors and windows closed even in warm weather. "Even then it finds a way of seeping into our homes."

The provincial pollution control board has been aware of the problem for years, although the apparent lack of action might suggest otherwise. It has noted that fallout levels at more than double the allowable limit have been recorded on the reserve. Both provincial and federal health officials have suspected that the pollution has lead to health problems, but have done little to help.

The PCB has ordered the mill brought up to level B of the pollution control standards of the B.C. forest industry. But, according to pollution officials, the magnitude of the problem and the estimated $12 million dollar price tag to install abatement equipment, has meant two extensions with the latest deadline now the end of 1980.

The Mowachaht are believed to be the first band in Canada to use the section of the Indian Act which gives Indians the power to protect the environment on their reserves. Their bylaw adopts level A of the B.C. forest industry pollution standards and ostensibly will allow charges to be laid against the company.

The Indian Affairs Department, it would seem, gave little thought to the environmental effects of the mill when it helped the band negotiate the original lease deal.

Economic arguments such as jobs and tax base used by many sectors of society to justify industrial pollution hold no meaning for the Mowachaht. Neglect by the company and government has left them little alternative but to attempt using the courts.

Striking a balance

Just over a year ago, a high ranking official with the Tanzanian government told a university seminar in Ottawa that 80 per cent of the Canadian aid to his country was wasted. Ibrahim Kaduma, a former minister in the East African country said the aid was wasted because of the strings attached by the Canadian government.

The strings he was talking about were the same as those mentioned recently by our Foreign Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald. She suggested that Canada use its foreign aid policy to enhance both Canadian commerce and political image.

Kaduma said that his country appreciated the aid, but he also said his country would be interested in using the aid in the cheapest markets, rather than having it tied solely to purchase of Canadian goods and services. Tanzania receives more Canadian aid than any other African commonwealth country.

While it would appear that MacDonald is merely attempting to put a fresh top on existing foreign aid policy, she and her colleagues would be well advised to review Tanzania's view of foreign aid and reports this week of $4.5 million Tanzanian aid program that ended in failure.

There is no reason for Canada not to use foreign aid to the benefit of its own economy where possible. However, if that benefit is seen to include Canadian made forklift trucks that end up in a Tanzania scrap heap because of a lack of training programs for people to use them and a lack of spare parts, it would seem that our foreign aid policy is designed primarily for our companies and not the country for which the goods are intended. It should be possible to strike a balance between the needs of the country receiving aid and what Canadian industry is capable of supplying.

LEONARD SILK

A return to some old bases

NEW YORK — The award of this year's Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science to Sir Arthur Lewis of Princeton University and to Theodore W. Schultz of the University of Chicago is a tribute to the efforts of both men to bring humanity to the center of the attention of their fellow economists — and bring the skills of the economist to bear on the problems of poverty that still afflict most of the human race.

In that respect, both men represent a throwback of economics from a spurious scientism to the concern for human welfare that marked its origins in the work of such social philosophers as John Locke, David Hume, Adam Smith and Thomas R. Malthus.

Like such eminent predecessors, both of this year's laureates in economics have drawn their models directly from nature and society rather than merely reworking the abstract models of other economists.

Learned from Germany

Schultz, who started out as an agricultural economist, served in Germany during the American occupation after World War II. He was struck by the extraordinarily rapid reconstruction of the German economy from the worst devastation ever levied upon a modern industrial economy.

What explained it? The factories and mills and machinery that make up the physical capital were largely gone. But what remained, like a ghost, was the knowledge of how to operate a modern economy and the human will and skills to rebuild it.

And when that reconstruction job was done, Germany returned not just to the level of production it had achieved before the devastation of the war but to one that far surpassed it. For the knowledge, embodied in human beings and their libraries and technology, had gone on growing while the killing was going on. That was true in all the belligerent nations.

Thus Schultz arrived at the concept of human capital. He himself emphasized that this was, at best, a rediscovery. "The philosopher-economist Adam Smith," Schultz noted, "boldly included all of the acquired and useful abilities of all the inhabitants of a country as part of capital" so critical to increasing the wealth of nations.

But the concept of capital later came to be ever more identified with reproducible goods. "Surely," Schultz said, "one of the major reasons for the widely held popular belief that economics is materialistic is the over-commitment on the part of economists to a partial concept of capital restricted to material objects."

Similarly, Sir Arthur has not only been a powerful and original scholar but has committed himself to working for the advancement of Third World countries. However, unlike many champions of the so-called new international economic order, he sees the hope of progress for the poor countries not in conflict or exploitation of the rich but in a more harmonious relationship with the rich countries.

Two years ago, he said that the real menace to the stability of the poor countries was the instability of the rich, which ruined the markets and earnings of the poor countries.

In the long run, he said, "our salvation lies in recognizing that what is good for the developing countries is also good for the developed." Sir Arthur appeared to be taking another leaf from Adam Smith's book, the one that saw the hope for the advancement of different nations in harmonious intercourse between them.

He has worked for harmony as well within countries, including the U.S. In the late 1960s, when campus conflict was at a peak and demonstrations by black students to get black studies programs established were the rage, Sir Arthur said that those who believed that university black studies could overcome the sense of racial inferiority inculcated into black children were deceiving themselves.

Work with blacks

The process began at an early age, he said, and could not be eradicated at the campus stage. The shockingly bad education given to blacks from their earliest years, often by black teachers badly trained in black colleges, repeating a vicious cycle; had to be changed, he said.

Some skeptics may ask what all this has to do with economics, a subject they see as orderly, definite, finite and "objective" rather than heavily mixed up with human values and emotions. But the failures of such a dry and mechanical economics have bred widespread dissatisfaction with its present state, apparently even at the Swedish Academy of Science.

Instead of the old simplifying assumption that human beings are a commodity called "labor," economists need to look more profoundly at the question of what makes men and women and children of all races and nationalities behave as they do, alone and in groups. That is the new-old economics, to which Sir Arthur and Schultz have invited their colleagues to return.

New possibilities

Perhaps Prime Minister Joe Clark and his officials are not aware of recent developments in nuclear power technology, which make the photovoltaic cell commercially feasible, and make nuclear and hydro power virtually obsolete.

According to Barry Commoner's new book, The Politics of Energy, by using solar-irradiated silicon chips, photovoltaic cell units can now be produced at a price well below the cost of hydro and nuclear power, per peak watt. This is made possible by a large order from the U.S. defence department, which plans to use them in remote locations, to replace generators. The contract runs from 1977 to 1982, with reductions in cost each year. The United Nations has also placed a large order, and plans to use the units in Third World countries. The potential is enormous, as the units can be used to power anything from flashlights to factories, with adaptation. Already Japan is selling inexpensive calculators and digital watches, and TV sets with 20-year guarantees, all powered by silicon chips, here in Canada.

Commoner states that the conventional power interests are fighting this development in the U.S., as they see the end of their profits, which they expected to reflect continuing increases in price. Perhaps we could avoid this in Canada, as our power supplies are largely publicly-owned. The fact that Japan is using the technology indicates that the U.S. does not have a monopoly on the patents. Of course this would mean the end of uranium mining, and curtailment of expensive oil exploration, welcome to environmentalists.

As Clark's talks on energy with President Carter are to take place shortly, in my opinion he should be well aware of this new option, and initiate studies to expedite its use in Canada. — Edith Adamson, 118 Croft Street.

Cost-benefits of solar energy rival hydro and nuclear power.

Peaceful use

The question of energy supply, policy and pricing, increasingly dominates public debate at all levels of Canadian government and in the media. The Chamber of Commerce has now endorsed nuclear power for Vancouver Island. One wonders why, when Canada is one of the few fortunate countries which has ample stocks of conventional forms of energy, both hydro and fossil fuels. In fact we are exporting both.

There is no doubt that Vancouver Island needs increased power supply for domestic use and especially for projected expansion of wood processing at Port Alberni and Campbell River. There is also no doubt that a national energy policy with an East-West electrical grid as a basis to take advantage of the time zones and to take care of peaking would satisfy our present and foreseeable needs on Vancouver Island without having to resort to nuclear power. (A fringe benefit could be the electrification of the C.P. and C.N., thus saving fossil fuels.)

Our national policy should include the saving of Petro-Can and expanding it by construction of two pipelines from coast to coast, one for gas and the other for oil to make both available at domestic prices, with available surplus energy sold abroad at the world price.

The event at Three Mile Island in the U.S.A. has focussed attention on the dangers of the use of nuclear energy when it is undertaken for private profit and without necessary safeguards. It is therefore necessary that the production and distribution of energy in Canada be under public ownership and democratic controls.

The Communist Party of Canada has called for a moratorium on nuclear power development while the entire question of safeguards is gone into through a full public inquiry.

1. It is based upon public ownership and democratic control.

2. That constructin of nuclear power stations guarantees the safety of the population and of those working in the nuclear power stations.

3. Other forms of energy are not available. In Canada there are ample stocks of other forms of energy and these should have priority. — Ernest L. Knott, secretary, Victoria Branch, Communist Party of Canada.

The article in the Times, Oct. 1, by Derek Sidenius headed "Socialist Poops Out Sooner But Still Preaches Socialism" contains a number of boners. The first is the statement that refers to the visiting speakers, Harry Young and Cyril May, as left-wingers. It is regretable that neither Young nor May are here to personally reply to this remark, for they would emphatically object to being labelled as left-wing.

World Socialists are not left wingers in any sense. It is the concepts and activities of the left, right and center and their staunch support of capitalism that have to be discarded if the problems of poverty, insecurity and threat of war are to be overcome. We include the NDP, British Labor, etc. in the above.

Violence to us is anti-socialist for it puts force in place of understanding and makes reasoned discussion impossible, it breeds the provocateur and other minority violence that leads no where. There is, in fact, more similarity between left, right and centre than there is between any one of them and the Scientific World Socialists of the Socialist Parties of Canada, Great Britain, USA, etc.

A further erroneous statement, to quote "under Socialism everyone would be equal" shows a complete lack of understanding of what socialism (scientific) is all about. Socialists do not seek to make every one equal. It is obvious this would be neither desireable nor possible. Social equality is quite a different matter and requires a complete reorganization of society based on production solely for use. Socialists call this New Society Socialism. It does not exist anywhere yet and requires the desire and know-how on the part of the voters to bring it about.

One further point: why is it that media refers to socialist propaganda as preaching and capitalist political propaganda as philosophizing? — J. T. Lambie, 641 Jones Terrace.

Medical ethics

It is with dismay that I read of the large numbers of medical doctors, trained in Canada, departing to the United States. I believe that the cost to the Canadian taxpayer is $150,000 for each trained doctor.

There should be some method within our democratic process to circumvent this. I suggest that each prospective medical student should be asked (not compelled) to sign a statement to the effect that he or she, upon graduation, would practise in Canada for, say, a five-year period. If they do not want to take on this obligation, to my mind a reasonable one, then they can go elsewhere to qualify in medicine. There will be many able, aspiring applicants for their places in any medical faculty.

I do not believe that there is anything in this suggestion which is undemocratic.

I am myself a graduate of medicine from Britain who requalified to practise in Canada. I realize that the fees my parents paid for my three sisters and me to qualify as doctors were subsidized by the state in the form of grants to the university. With the exception of one sister, who died at a young age, I believe we repaid our debt to the taxpayer in war-torn Britain's dark years.

The public often doesn't realize what a high overhead doctors have, especially when they read in the press of the astronomical (gross) incomes earned by some. This high overhead is, on the whole, accepted by the medical profession. However, it incenses me to read of the numbers of Ontario doctors who are in favour of extra billing.

The Canadian medical plan is probably the best which can be achieved with the optimum results for the patient. This is, or should be, the main criterion.

In summary, I am against doctors being trained in Canada and departing for other lands. I am against extra billing by any Canadian doctor.

To me it is a matter of integrity within the medical profession and loyalty to one's country — qualities perhaps sadly lacking in some of today's young professionals. — Charlotte Stopford, M.B., Victoria.

Sir Duff memories

I am writing a biography of Sir Lyman Duff (1864-1955), late Chief Justice of Canada. He practiced law in Victoria from 1895 to 1904, when he was appointed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Two years later, he was appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada, retiring in 1944.

I would appreciate hearing from any of your readers who may have recollections of, or anecdotes about, Sir Lyman. I would be particularly interested to learn of any correspondence, documents or memorabilia relating to him. — David Ricardo Williams, Q.C., 170 Craig St., Duncan.

'English-Canadians yawn while country crumbles'

By ANTHONY WESTELL

Toronto Star

OTTAWA — As the debate in Quebec on the future of the province gathers force, English-speaking Canadians carry on as if it were business as usual for confederation.

Never, surely, has a country approached a great national crisis in such a passive mood. It's as if we are too bored with the subject of unity even to think about it.

We are encouraged in this attitude by Prime Minister Joe Clark, who dodged the issue during the general election and seldom mentions it now.

The attention of the government, and of the public, seems to be fixed on the price of oil, and Clark's efforts are directed to conciliating premiers Peter Lougheed of Alberta and William Davis of Ontario.

But pretty soon we are all going to wake up with a shock to realize that Quebeckers really are going to vote in a few months on the future of confederation, and that the whole country is facing its gravest crisis since 1867.

There is little comfort to be drawn from the massive survey of Quebec opinion reported this month. True, the poll showed once again that only some 20 per cent of Quebeckers want to separate and that a substantial majority want their province to remain part of Canada.

But 54 per cent are prepared to give their provincial government a mandate to negotiate on sovereignty-association. This is exactly what Premier Rene Levesque is asking.

It's not surprising that the poll also found Quebeckers to be confused about what is meant by the term sovereignty-association. As Professor Peter Leslie of Queen's University shows in a recent study, "Equal to Equal: Economic Association and the Canadian Common Market" — published by the Institute of Intergovernmental Relations — the PQ program raises a lot more questions than it answers.

As Leslie says, the party, at its convention in June, "overwhelmingly endorsed the declaration: "Sovereignty for Quebec is not negotiable." And how did they define sovereignty? All powers to tax and all powers to pass laws. No Quebeckers in a Canadian Parliament. And no Canadian Parliament exercising powers over Quebec."

That's separatism.

It would mean the end of confederation. But when the PQ sketched what it means by economic association, most was left vague. The assumption seems to be that a sovereign Quebec would deal on equal terms with the rest of Canada in running the common market.

But as Leslie points out: "The PQ leaders must surely realize that acceptance of the parity principle, in the form of bilateral association which they propose, is utterly unrealistic. The association would have the tasks of setting tariffs and otherwise directing a common commercial policy, controlling the exchange rate, implementing policies on interest rates and credit, and perhaps overseeing the administration of transportation networks. In such matters, why should any one regional economic interest have a voice equal to that of all the other regions combined, when the population ratio is about one to three?"

Levesque and his colleagues probably do indeed realize that their scheme is unrealistic. But what they seem to me to be doing is to be leading Quebeckers stage by stage toward full independence.

They won election in 1976 by promising good government and to hold a referendum before doing anything about separatism. Now they are holding a referendum not on separatism, but on sovereignty-association, a concept which can confuse voters.

They're also assuring the voters that all they want is a mandate to negotiate and that even if the negotiations with the rest of Canada fail, they'll consult the people again before doing anything drastic. So the referendum will not be decisive.

But negotiatons would of course fail because the basic idea of sovereignty-association is unrealistic. The next step would be for Levesque to explain to Quebeckers that as Canada has refused a reasonable deal, the only remaining question is whether to surrender or to go for full independence without association.

Who can doubt that Quebeckers would chose independence — and hope to do a deal later?

The PQ's strategy is one of gradualism — and it's working. It's working partly because English-speaking Canadians, including their national leader, have not yet engaged the PQ argument, worked out a reasonable constitutional alternative, and placed it before Quebeckers.

We yawn while the country crumbles.

The dam-builder at work

Running water, chewing beavers

By ROBERT TREUER

(Treuer is the author of The Tree Farm and Voyageur Country. He wrote this for The Washington Post)

BEMIDJI, Minn. — When I first acquired the deserted farm on the banks of the upper Mississippi in the Minnesota north woods more than 20 years ago, beavers were sparse. Here and there some of the many lodges were occupied. Nearby farmboys and a handful of trappers — and modest fur prices — kept the population in some sort of balance.

I heard stories of the beavers' mischief, flooding roads and inundating farmlands, of neighbors dynamiting dams and trapping them. This sounded needlessly vicious to me, an extreme extension of the ethos of man shaping the world to his convenience at the cost of ecological balance and, ultimately, environmental sanity. My neighbors did not argue, and merely arched their eyebrows, implying that I would learn in time.

The number of beavers declined, until the sighting of an occasional stray in search of terrain and companionship became a rarity. Lakes and creeks are abundant, and the growth of aspen and other foods sought by beavers is rampant, so that it seemed a shame not to have more of them around. This thought came to me often during drought years when water levels dropped and the fire hazard was severe. Then the retained water backed up behind the beaver dams would have been very welcome; but there were no occupied lodges nearby.

They returned inexplicably in modest numbers, and hard on their heels came the trappers. I posted my land, tried to locate the trappers who came up the river and overland, whose traps and tracks I found but whose ghostlike comings and goings eluded me. I sprang the traps, which they reset. I removed the traps and they sank the swimming raft floating on barrels on my lake with gunfire one day when I was away at work. Then the beavers were gone again, the last lodge trapped out and the conflict became passe.

Game wardens and foresters at the State Department of Natural Resources listened sympathetically to my pleading for the transplanting of beavers into my denuded lake.

"If you have nuisance beavers somewhere and have to trap them, you can put them in my lake," I suggested.

"Live trapping is very time consuming; we don't do that any more," they explained. Where absolutely necessary, licences were issued to local residents to trap the beavers, killing them and taking their furs. Ordinarily, though, it was a matter of gritting their teeth, planning and building roads and bridges with the possibility of beaver dams in mind and sometimes installing sluices that they opened in the mornings and closed at night, thus baffling the nocturnal beavers as they sought the "leak." No other effective baffles or control have yet been found.

"You're sure you want beavers?" they asked.

"Certainly!" I tend to be emphatic and certain, to my eventual regret.

They returned in numbers and suddenly after a few years. We watched with delight as the old lodge on our lake was renovated and expanded, and two lodges were refurbished on the next lake. It seemed to me that their appetites were modest and their incursions for building materials well within the provender of my woods, without undue damage.

However, they dammed the outlet of the lake, and the water rose ever higher, far beyond their needs. I opened the dam to lower the water level, and they rebuilt it bigger and better by next morning. Woven into the dam structure, amid branches and clumps of mud, was lake bottom debris: cow and pig bones (I had heard tales of farm animals getting mired, then being lost in the silt of the lakeshore long ago), broken glass and pieces of some particularly garish blue and white dinnerware. I did not know the source of these shards, which my wife refers to as Blue Willow. ("Let them haul up the pieces, maybe we can glue them together and wind up with a complete set," she says, but I fail to see the humor; somehow blue and white pieces of plate clash with my image of north woods wilderness).

After a second and third day of opening the dam, only to find it bigger and better each time than it had been before, I arrived one morning to find it not only rebuilt, but across the top of it a sheet of plastic neatly anchored with branches and mud. I had lost the sheet months before in a windstorm. So much for beavers in the wilds; ours were scavengers pure and simple, too lazy to cut their own dam materials and unearthing human debris and middens as an unsightly labor-saving device. I gave up for the season.

We posted the land and kept a close lookout for trappers in winter, and this time there were no ugly confrontations for there were so many beaver all about that my peculiarity in protecting them did not interfere with the trapping; there were other places for the trappers to go.

It was a long winter, with an unusual amount of snow; with the arrival of warm weather and the spring runoff, the beavers re-emerged, their numbers augmented by progeny who had to be taught dam-building.

I am told by some neighbors that beavers react to the sound of running water, taking this as a breach of their dikes. If true, this spring's record runoff drove the beavers to heroic efforts of dam-building. A tote road, kept open for fire control access, was flooded. The lake expanded in size. The children's swimming hole up the creek became deep enough for my use. The greening trees around the periphery of the lake turned brown as the waterlogged roots rotted and died. The emerald lake was no longer ringed in green, but by brown and sere skeletons of birch, cedar, pine and aspen. Then the access to the building site for our new home became waterlogged and, finally, impassable.

The return of the beavers has produced an unsightly array of dead and dying trees, inconvenience and impediment to our use of the land. In the larger framework of a wilderness ecosystem, with its long-range cycles and episodes, the beavers' presence and alteration of the environment are productive and necessary. On the smaller scale of our land, coexistence — so ardently sought by me for so long — has now become seemingly impossible.

Dynamiting the dam, which frequently drives out the beavers, or trapping (killing) them go against my grain.

I amuse friends by describing the recipes I intend to use for Christmas dinner of roast beaver, and my plans to make a beaver coat for my wife ("But I want a store-bought coat!" she expostulates).

Meanwhile, our house-building project is stalled, no alternative sites being feasible, and more trees around the lake are dying. I grit my teeth while they whet theirs. I contemplate beavercide while my children, groomed and conditioned to a love of wildlife over the years, tell me that the young beavers are "cute" and of watching them at close range.

Tonight an engineer is to visit to advise me on the cost of building a bridge.

Two-income zones

I don't know about the price of real estate in your town, but in Manhattan it has become laughable, unless you are a buyer, in which case it is cryable. A New Yorker I know recently offered the $450,000 asking price for a row house he had been renting, only to be told a few days later that somebody else had topped his bid with an offer of $600,000. This was not stage money they were talking about. It was legal tender.

Apartment prices are equally amusing. I suppose you could buy a little something for less than $100,000 if you enjoy wrestling rats and don't mind sleeping on a convertible refrigerator, but don't expect it to be easy, because everything in town is full up.

Nobody has a persuasive explanation of why so many people can pay such prodigious prices when everybody in the country is groaning about being tax poor, but I have a couple of theories. One is that all these superrich buyers are cocaine dealers, a huge new criminal element created by the rage among the chic set for stuffing powder up their fashionable noses.

* * *

Unless the law steps down on this racket pretty soon, law-abiding people will be driven out of the city and Manhattan will become a town of cocaine dealers.

Do I overestimate the number of dealers in town? Possibly. But there are certainly more cocaine dealers than Arabs in New York — when is the last time a New York politician went angling for the Arab vote? — and, yet, otherwise sensible people insist it is Arabs who are hogging all the real estate with their oil billions.

As between Arabs and cocaine dealers, I tend to suspect the cocaine dealers. Placing the blame, however, does not solve the problem of how the non-criminal classes can find living space in Manhattan.

If a young man who wanted to live in New York came to me for advice, I would tell him to marry a woman with a good job. The present cost of housing here requires a two-income family. There may still be a few honest men in town who lack well-paid wives, but the long-term economics of the place are almost certain to resettle them in Hoboken and Jersey City in another year or two.

Who knows? Maybe the big increase in the number of working wives over the past few years has more to do with the skyrocketing price of real estate than cocaine. If household income doubles in enough households it is only natural that the price of owning a household will double right behind it.

This seems to have happened in Washington, where the government observes the equal-opportunity employment law more assiduously than most private companies do. There, two wedded civil servants can readily gross $60,000 to $100,000 a year, and many do. Housing costs in Washington have risen as dizzily as Manhattan's, and the poor of the once-black inner city are being unhoused to accommodate well-heeled teams of connubial bureaucrats.

* * *

This is one of the side effects of the feminist movement's success. It would be foolishly romantic not to take it into account when making one's life arrangements, particularly if you hoped to live in a two-income economic zone like Manhattan.

Taking it into account, of course, returns us to a time when marriages were sensible economic arrangements. If passion happened to be involved between the two marriageable economic resources, so much the happier, but this was an ancillary consideration.

The aim was for persons who had money — euphemistically called "position" — to keep it and enhance it by marriage merger. Such people usually owned the biggest houses and the best apartments. If pulses did not pound when the mergees laid hands on each other, they did not destroy the enterprise by rushing to the divorce court. Economically, it was more sensible to while away their afternoons with gardeners and chorus girls.

* * *

The notion that the all-conquering power of love can prevail over the inexpressible difficulties of marriage with its monstrous weekly bills dates from the era of plenty when the single "breadwinner" could still support unemployable women, children and grandparents, usually without resort to armed robbery.

This era is ending now. Children are held in a state of unbirth while couples study terrifying government statistics on the cost of raising them, and grandparents look to Social Security for their bread. In Manhattan it takes two breadwinners to provide a roof overhead.

To any young men out there dreaming of New York, I would say, "Marry a woman with a big salary." To young women who have neglected to equip themselves with earning power, I would say, "Marry a cocaine-dealer."

Kamloops eyes Afton riches

KAMLOOPS (CP) — City council wants to extend city boundaries 16 kilometres west to annex the prosperous Afton Mines, a move that would increase tax revenues by $200,000.

The proposal, made in a letter to the provincial government, follows more than a year of negotiations with officials of the Afton copper mine, Mayor Mike Latta said at a council meeting Tuesday night.

"The mines won't be going down without a fight," he said. "The mines will be putting in their best lick to convince the government that it would be a dangerous precedent to have cities annexing mines."

Latta said the letter to Bill Vander Zalm, minister of municipal affairs, will start a controversy that will not likely end soon.

"This may not turn out to be a short, cozy affair," he said. "But this council can be assured it has done what it could to encourage the mines to become part of the community."

Afton is one of four mines in the Highland Valley, a booming area where several mining companies are considering expansion. The other three mines there now are Craigmont, Lornex and Bethlehem.

Laskin kept in hospital

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Justice Bora Laskin will remain indefinitely in the Vancouver hospital where he has spent the last two months recovering from abdominal surgery, his doctor said Wednesday night.

He had been scheduled for discharge this week.

Dr. Ross Sharp said Laskin, 67, was in satisfactory condition but gave no indication when he would be released.

The chief justice was vacationing here when he was admitted to hospital Aug. 22 for a hernia operation. He returned to surgery eight days later to have an abdominal abscess drained.

Apologize, apologize, leaders gibe

Loffmark — who publicly supported the NDP in the last provincial election — recently had his government pension cut from $546 to $95 a month by the provincial superannuatiom branch.

He appealed the cut to the ombudsman and suggested the cut was the result of his switch in political loyalties.

Charged Barrett: "I have no doubt there was political interference in this matter."

Bennett Wednesday calling on Barrett to apologize to both him and to the staff of the superannuation branch.

"It's simply not true," the premier said, adding the branch made the decision on its own.

But Barrett said he won't apologize.

"No," the NDP leader said. "He owes me an apology."

Bennett then tried to turn the tables by noting the NDP was in power when Loffmark first applied for his pension.

That application was approved in only nine days, Bennett said.

"I want to know why it had been proceeded with so speedily. The obvious question is, 'Was this the start of their strong personal relationship?' " Bennett said.

Bennett admitted he knew Loffmark's pension was being looked into shortly after the election.

He said someone in the branch brought the matter of the pension to the attention of Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis and Curtis asked Bennett what he should do.

Bennett said he told Curtis to do nothing, because the branch is independent of government.

Bennett said the legislation is clear — pensions of retired MLAs who take jobs with institutions which are largely funded by governments such as UBC, have to be adjusted to prevent the taxpayers' paying double salaries.

Bennett admitted Loffmark's pension had been examined in December, 1976, but somehow his double employment was missed at that time.

He had no explanation as to how the staff at superannuation branch could have missed it.

On another topic, the premier said he was very surprised to hear that Barrett suggested he use his family influence to stop the uranium exploration on the Bennett's family ranch.

"The Mineral Act does not allow for people to oppose claims staking on land. I'm surprised the leader of the opposition didn't know this."

Crab boat light false fire alarm

A B.C. ferry was diverted Wednesday to help a U.S. crab boat then found that the boat didn't need any help.

Capt. Ron Hallstrom, a search and rescue spokesman, said the Queen of Vancouver changed its course because the crab boat was thought to be on fire. When the ferry arrived at the scene, it found the crab boat was using orange floodlights.

Hallstrom said the incident, which only cost the ferry a few minutes' time on its run between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen, was one of a series along the coast in recent weeks.

"These boats are using Alaska Sun lights, which are big, orange lights," he said.

Meanwhile, three men, who were not identified, were rescued Wednesday from the 13-metre fishpacker St. George which ran aground on Vivian Island, west of Powell River. None of the men was injured.

Local control of airports?

Ottawa should turn over administration of airports to local communities, says the head of a Transport Canada study of air terminal administration.

Mel Hagglund said in Victoria, a five- to seven-member citizens group should be placed in charge to operate the airport and handle its budget while Ottawa retains responsibility for safety.

This plan would enable Ottawa to dismantle its bureaucracy in airport management and could also result in airports operating at a profit if the local administration was prepared to increase landing fees, he said.

At present, landing fees amount to eight per cent of the ticket price up to a maximum of $15. Hagglund said the interest rate should be cut to about five per cent but there should be no maximum dollar amount.

Long-haul passengers would pay significantly higher fees, which are added to ticket prices, and this would provide airport terminals with the revenues they need, he said.

Hagglund was in Victoria to obtain opinions on airport management from local citizens. His study will be completed in December when final recommendations will be made to the federal government.

Even if the recommendations are adopted, it would take two to three years before they could be implemented, he said.

HOW TO PUT MORE WOW
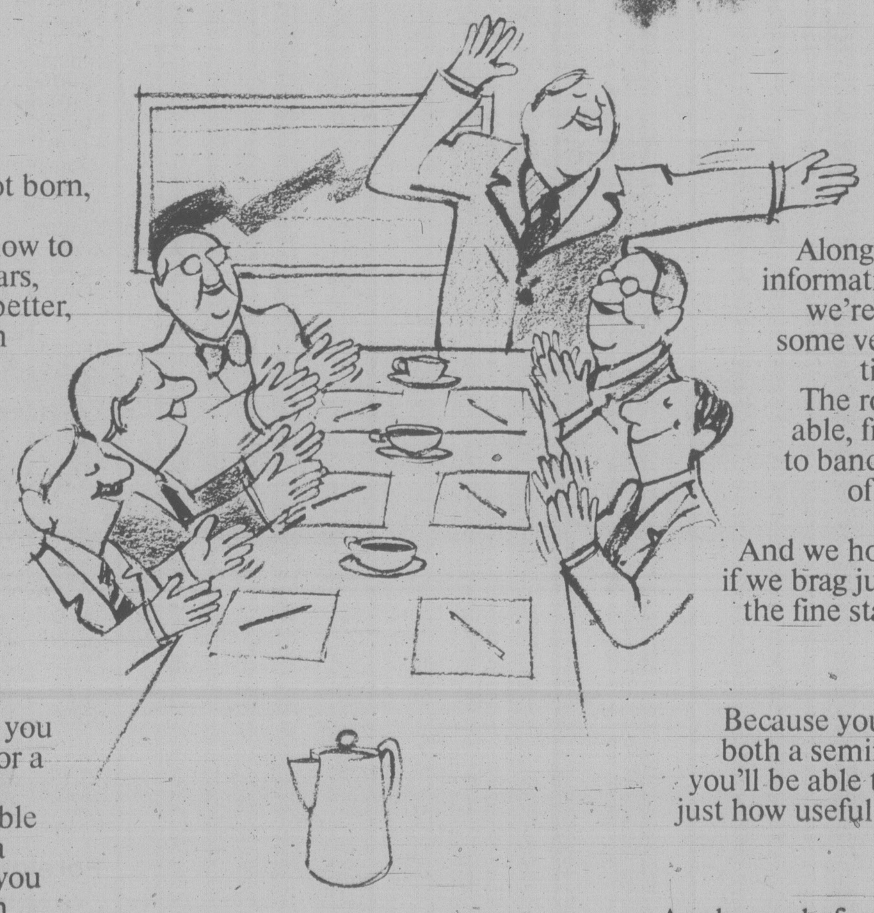
IN YOUR POWWOWS.



Good meetings are not born, they're made.

If you'd like to learn how to make your meetings, seminars, conferences, and banquets better, come to our free Seminar on Seminars.

Over the years we've learned a lot about hosting large (and small) gatherings.

And we'd like to give you a piece of our mind.

Because we figure the more you know about the mechanics of meetings, the more you'll appreciate our services.

So we'll show and tell you how to organize a meeting for a thousand. And for a dozen.

Where the most sensible place is to hold it. How big a room you'll need. Whether you should serve food or adjourn to a nearby restaurant. What provisions you should make for coffee. Or other beverages. What kind of audio-visual equipment you'll need. How to set up a message centre to relay emergency communications. And so on.

And now a word from the sponsor.
Along with all the general information about meetings, we're going to pass along some very specific information about ourselves. The rooms we have available, from conference-size to banquet-size. The prices of our various menus. That sort of thing. And we hope you'll pardon us if we brag just a teeny bit about the fine staff we've assembled to serve you.

Judge for yourself.
Because you'll be taking part in both a seminar and a reception, you'll be able to judge for yourself just how useful our knowledge and services can be.

R.S.V.P.
As always, before a meeting like this can take place the organizers must know who is coming. So admission will be by invitation only.

If you would like an invitation please mail the coupon.

New York

Stock prices rose in moderate trading this afternoon, led by sharp gains in oil issues and buoyed by encouraging quarterly profit reports from some other sectors.

A number of oil issues posted gains of a point or more in active trading, in what Eugene Nowak, an analyst at Blyth Eastman Dillon described as a strong rebound from the market's recent slide.

Mobil rose 1⅛ to $48⅞; Exxon gained 1¼ to $58½; Union Oil of California rose 1½ to $48½ and Lousiana Land Exploration added 2 to $46⅞, all in active trading.

In addition to their recent losses in a seven-day slide that ended with the market's first modest gain on Wednesday, a number of analysts say the push in oil stocks also is tied to expectations that quarterly profit reports, due next wee, will be exceptionally strong.

Chemical firms also were generally higher following favorable earning reports from a number of companies earlier this week. Du Pont rose ½ to $40⅞, Union Carbide was up ¼ to $40¾ and Allied Chemical rose ⅛ to $42½.

London

Oil issues were firm while other equities were lower due to lack of interest on the London stock market today.

The Financial Times Index was down 2.8 to 469.5 an hour before the close of trading.

Canadian issues eased.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY, PREFERRED SHARES ISSUE

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission has received an application from British Columbia Telephone Company (B.C. Tel) for approval of the issue of Cumulative Redeemable Preferred Shares to Canadian Telephones and Supplies Ltd. (CT&S), a wholly owned subsidiary of B.C. Tel, pursuant to an agreement whereby B.C. Tel would purchase from CT&S the Class "A" common shares of 70,074 Limited.

The sole business and asset of 70,074 Limited is that of the ownership and management of B.C. Tel's head office building in Burnaby, B.C. In order to acquire direct control of 70,074 Limited, B.C. Tel will purchase its voting shares from CT&S for the estimated fair market value of $3.8 million. To achieve a "tax free rollover" of the shares from CT&S to B.C. Tel, B.C. Tel shares must be issued to CT&S as consideration, and an election pursuant to Section 85 of the Income Tax Act must later be filed with Revenue Canada.

As a result of these transactions and the consequent application of Section 88 of the Income Tax Act, B.C. Tel would hold the head office building and land, would have the capability to claim capital cost allowance on the building, and would be able to use as deductions against its own income the tax losses of 70,074 Limited. B.C. Tel estimates that if the application is approved in 1979, the present value of the cash tax savings to it will amount to $3.9 million.

The application and accompanying documents are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the offices of B.C. Tel, 5th Floor, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, B.C., and 826 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., and at the offices of the CRTC, Suite 1103, 701 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, B.C. and 5th Floor, Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudiere, 1 Promenade du Portage, Hull, Quebec.

Interventions

Any interested person or association who wishes to comment on this application may do so by mailing or delivering by hand a letter of intervention to the Commission with a copy thereof to B.C. Tel. The mailing addresses to be used are: Mr. J.G. Patenaude, Acting Secretary General, CRTC, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N2; and Mr. K.D.A. Morrison, Vice-President, General Counsel and Secretary, 21st Floor, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, B.C., V5H 3Z7. In the case of delivery by hand, the locations listed above for public inspection of documents should be used.

A letter of intervention should clearly state the intervener's views regarding the application together with any relevant information that may be useful in explaining or supporting those views. It may also include a statement of intention to appear at a public hearing should one be held. In order to be considered, all interventions must actually be received by B.C. Tel and the Commission on or before 8 November, 1979.

Similarly, copies of replies from B.C. Tel to any interventions must actually be received by the interveners concerned and by the Commission on or before 15 November, 1979.

Procedures to be followed

Depending on the nature of the interventions and replies received within the time periods set out above, the Commission will determine whether or not a public hearing will be held to deal with the application. If the Commission determines that a public hearing is necessary, it will take place on 26 November, 1979 at an exact time and location to be specified by the Commission. All persons or associations who have expressed an interest in the application will be notified by the Commission should a public hearing be convened.

The Commission will render a decision on or before 6, December 1979.

Metro Trust officials quit

TORONTO (CP) — At least six senior officials of Metropolitan Trust Co. of Toronto have resigned following drastic changes enacted by Victoria and Grey Trust Co. of Lindsay, Ont., after an amalgamation earlier this year.

T. S. Ripley, former president and chief executive officer of Metro Trust, and Philip Armstrong, former vice-president of mortgages, were among the senior executives to resign.

While portfolio administration has been upgraded and programs changed, new management also is seeking to simplify Metro Trust's wide financial holdings.

The simplification process includes the following planned measures:

—Canadian First Mortgage Corp., a 98-per-cent owned mortgage loan company, and its subsidiary, Metrohio Corp., have been deactivated and new managers plan to merge them with the parent.

—Metco Investments Ltd., which is 50-per-cent owned and a sales agent for institutional clients, will eventually cease operations.

—Scholarship Consultants of North America Ltd., 50-per-cent owned, will be sold. The firm administers a university scholarship program for which Metro Trust acts as trustee.

—CDI Financial Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary providing construction financing, will be drawn into the parent.

Air crash bodies recovered

Authorities have recovered the bodies of three Greater Victoria residents killed Sunday in a plane crash near Powell River.

Killed were pilot Rev. Don Moe of Sidney, and passengers Mary Ellen Kingsfield and Valerie Wuerch, both of Victoria.

Initial investigations indicate low cloud and fog, combined with pilot inexperience, may have caused the crash.

Feuding Socreds agree to bury hatchet

Two Fraser Valley Socreds feuding over an influence-peddling charge have buried the hatchet.

Bill Ritchie, the rookie Socred MLA for the new riding of Central Fraser Valley, and Henry Friesen, president of the riding's Social Credit association, settled their differences at a midnight session Tuesday.

Friesen, in a sworn affidavit to the RCMP, had charged that Ritchie promised him help with a land subdivision through his contacts with the Agriculture Land Commission.

Ritchie counter-attacked with a lawsuit.

The RCMP, however, are continuing their investigation into the affair.

At the midnight meeting, which was tape-recorded by a newspaperman, Friesen agreed to withdraw his affidavit, and Ritchie agreed to drop his suit against Friesen.

Ritchie called a press conference in Victoria Wednesday to announce the settlement.

But he refused to let reporters hear the tape or to expand on what took place.

The tape is in the hands of a neutral observer at the meeting, Frank Klassen of the Abbotsford, Sumas and Matsqui News, who has promised not to release the tape without permission of the combatants.

Ritchie steadfastly refused to answer reporters' questions except to repeat that as far as he is concerned, the matter is over.

The truce comes as a surprise because just before the midnight meeting there was a public meeting of the constituency association attended by Ritchie and Friesen.

Friesen told reporters following the meeting he would not back down on anything that was contained in his affidavit.

"The premier had to know about it," he said. "If I could have gotten through to him it never would have happened. The politicians are too far cut off from the party."

Ritchie admitted that Friesen didn't actually apologize and he couldn't explain why Friesen had such a sudden change of heart other than "he felt that it shouldn't proceed; that he decided that he would just as soon stop the whole thing, mend the fences, be friends and carry on with the job."

Friesen isn't talking to reporters about the pact.

Asked if he felt Friesen may have committed perjury for issuing what now appears to be a false document, Ritchie said: "I'm just a dumb farmer, not a lawyer and I can't answer that."

After the press conference Ritchie detailed how he thinks the allegations arose.

He said that although he knew Friesen didn't like him, he went to his house when he was campaigning during the spring election.

Friesen said he objected to Ritchie because Ritchie was on the land commission and Friesen didn't like the commission.

Ritchie said Friesen told him the commission had discriminated against him when he applied to have some land removed from the reserve so he could subdivide it.

Ritchie wasn't sitting on the commission when Friesen made his application.

He then told him if he re-applied, Ritchie would assure him he would get fair and honest treatment from the commission.

Friesen's affidavit said Ritchie promised him he would get his land freed from the reserve in exchange for his political support.

CP Air buying wide-bodied Boeing jets

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air announced today that it has ordered four Boeing 767-200 wide-bodied jets for its North American routes and holds options to order four more of the twin-engined aircraft.

The order represents an expenditure of $400 million and is part of a $1 billion fleet and facilities expansion, the airline said in a news release.

Deliveries of the aircraft, which will replace DC-8 and 727 aircraft in domestic service, are expected to commence in 1983.

Brewin runs for alderman

Gretchen Brewin announced today she will be a candidate for alderman in Victoria in the Nov. 17 municipal election.

She's the sixth candidate to declare for one of the eight aldermanic positions.

The announcement came on Persons Day, the 50th anniversary of a landmark legal precedent which declared Canadian women to be legally persons, entitled to be appointed to public office.

So far she is the only woman running in Victoria. Brewin noted that Victoria has had only one woman alderman — Helen Biernes — in the last decade and only four have served on council since 1920. There has never been a woman mayor.

Her last run at politics was as a federal NDP candidate in Victoria, where she ran a strong second to Allan McKinnon. She also served a three-year term on the school board of Scarborough in metropolitan Toronto.

She said her main priorities if elected would be services for senior citizens, neighborhood preservation and transit.

"It is very evident that this city needs a central registry of accommodation vacancies for low income people. Many of our seniors are in this category.

"Then we need to step up our bus shelter program in areas not yet served."

She also said the integrity of neighborhoods should be preserved.

"Well-designed, sensibly-priced new accommodation along with protection and upgrading of the built-in character of existing housing stock are just two ways the neighborhoods will survive," said Brewin, who lives in Fairfield.

There is also a need for an over-all transit plan that would connect the E & N railway to the new bus terminal being planned, she said.

Brewin graduated from political science at the University of Victoria in 1976 and now is chairman of Prime Time, a project for women in their middle years.

Product safety shakey

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite efforts to guard consumers through extensive product testing, the public should know there is no safe place this side of the grave, says a government health expert.

Dr. Emmanuel Somers, of the federal health department's environmental health directorate, said Wednesday the vast spectrum of chemicals and other products used in contemporary society make total public safety impossible to guarantee.

Somers, the agency's director-general, described for delegates to the First North American Consumer Product Testing Conference the problems, some of the them amusing, that face government product testers.

He said one test attempted to determine if children's raccoon-skin hats enraged dogs. It was performed after a child wearing a Davey Crockett-style cap was bitten by a dog.

"The ever-vigilant consumer and corporate affairs department sent one of their senior officers to the Ottawa Humane Society where, on all fours and dressed in a Davey Crockett outfit, he faced a gallery of astounded dogs," he said.

"The dogs didn't bark, didn't charge — just gazed in astonishment at this civil servant on all fours wearing a funny hat on his head. It's fair to assume from that that the hat posed no threat to the dogs."

of the officers told him a "bar check" was being conducted under the Liquor Control and Licensing Act.

However, Paquette conceded he "might have touched" one of the officers "to get his attention," but denied grabbing him.

Paquette demonstrated how he could have touched the officer by placing his open hand on Oliver's arm.

Under cross-examination by Kittle, Paquette said he always got along "100 per cent" with the RCMP but that the police attitude changed about a year ago when there was a disagreement between his son and the police hockey team which resulted in the players switching their business to the Travelodge beer parlor at the other end of Beacon Avenue.

Paquette said he didn't mind the police checking patrons for identification or intoxication, but objected to the manner of the check.

He admitted he was convicted on March 29, 1977, in Victoria provincial court of obstructing a peace officer and mischief in connection with an incident Sept. 22, 1976, involving an RCMP police car and was fined $100 and $50, respectively.

searcher who resigned), Glen Mitchell who is now executive assistant to Education Minister Pat McGeer and Arnett.

Arnett called Nichols's story a "damnable lie."

"I have never been involved in any conspiracy of any kind," he said.

"I am shocked and I cannot find words to express my shock, anger and disbelief."

Arnett said he never at any time met with anyone to discuss any letter.

"I challenge her to come forward and name the person who told her this."

Arnett demanded an apology and retraction from the Sun and Nichols and said he is consulting a lawyer.

Mitchell also denied being party to any such discussion.

He said he doesn't recall the meeting Nichols refers to and said he was never involved in any discussion on how to deal with Townsend.

Arnett said he is willing to face his accusers at any time to find out where they got the story.

"The allegation is terribly, terribly damaging to me," he said.

Arnett admitted he and most others in the premier's office were familiar with Townsend because of the letters he wrote to newspapers.

But he says he never took part in any discussion on how to counter Townsend's successful letter-writing campaign.

He wants to blow lid off 'cosmic Watergate'

Friedman with photo of sculpture of extraterrestrial being done in consultation with the Hills of New Hampshire

By PAUL MINVIELLE

"I'm the Ralph Nader of UFOs, not the Billy Graham."

The speaker is Stanton ~~T.~~ Friedman, who bills himself as the Flying Saucer Physicist.

It's difficult to repress a giggle and sly smile in contemplation of yet another flying saucer nut.

But in short order, Friedman overwhelms amused disbelief with data and facts like some intellectual juggernaut.

Friedman, in town to speak at the University of Victoria, found time for interviews and talk shows.

Why is he doing it?

At stake, says Friedman, is nothing less than our survival on this planet. He is convinced that our best shot at avoiding nuclear holocaust lies in developing a global outlook.

In essence, Friedman says we're not Russians, Americans, Chinese, or any other nationality — we're all earthlings.

Friedman spent 14 years in the development of such advanced technological hardware as nuclear airplanes, nuclear fission and fusion rockets and compact nuclear systems for space applications, working for such companies as General Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors.

But he became fed up with yet another government-bankrolled research and development project and quit.

Now 45, he earns his living by spreading the word about UFOs — not as an evangelist who asks you to believe — but as a scientist who believes everyone should check out the facts for himself.

He's also produced a movie — Flying Saucers ARE Real — that will be released in January.

How about Eric von Danniken, author of Chariots of the Gods and sundry other books suggesting that aliens have visited the earth often in the past and the writings and artifacts left us by the ancients all contain proof of said visits?

Or his claim that we are all descended from hybrids — earthlings whose intelligent animal ancestors bedded down with extraterrestrials visitors?

"An A for public relations, a D-minus for scholarship," says Friedman, adding that while what von Danniken has said is entirely possible and even probable, he feels any conclusions should be reached only after checking available evidence.

In dealing with eminent scientists who disparage flying saucer reports, Friedman says they've failed to check available data, including the famous Project Blue Book Special Report No. 14, done for the U.S. Air Force.

Many people, notably Carl Sagan, cite the book but Friedman challenges their concept of its data or its conclusions.

Freidman agrees, while still disputing von Danniken's route to the conclusion that there is much evidence to support the theory that Sodom and Gomorrah were in fact levelled by a nuclear explosion.

What about Dr. Daniel Fry, the self-styled scientist at the White Sands testing station in New Mexico who had been taken on a trip in a flying saucer to New York City and back?

Friedman said that while Fry had some good information, he wasn't a scientist but a technician at White Sands and Friedman doubts he ever went aloft with aliens.

Friedman was a technical adviser on the movie about Barney and Betty Hill, a middle aged New Hampshire couple who revealed under hypnosis that they had been captured in 1961 when returning home from a vacation in Canada and taken aboard an alien craft.

The Hills were left with the post-hypnotic suggestion that they would forget all about the incident and for the next two years they were beset by unexplained dreams and anxiety about the missing two hours of their trip.

A psychiatrist suggested their memory of the period would return, but when it doesn't, a Boston psychiatrist recommended hypnosis. The bizarre story was finally revealed.

One of the interesting aspects of the story was Betty Hill's conversation with one of the aliens, and the "map" he showed her. When she couldn't show the alien where on the map her planet was, the alien dropped the matter.

Later, under hypnosis, Mrs. Hill drew the map.

Marjorie Fish, a remarkable Ohio school teacher and amateur astronomer, later talked with the Hills and ultimately developed the theory that the map represented a star system featuring two stars known jointly as Zeta Reticuli.

Sagan was one of the scientists to challenge Fish's hypothesis but Friedman rises to her defence, because in his estimation, she stayed with the facts.

What are the facts about Friedman? Is he a learned lecturer or a loony?

His interpretation of the facts is that we have been and are being visited regularly by aliens, who probably view us as a primitive society that spends much of its time engaged in warfare.

Friedman says that while polls show that most of us believe in the existence of UFOs, we're too frightened of what others might think of us.

As a result, many sightings go unreported, despite the fact that many reputable people are on record as having seen a UFO.

He thinks we have all been victimized by an official coverup of UFO evidence — he calls it a "cosmic Watergate" — and he's trying to lift that veil of secrecy.

For what it's worth, let it be noted that along with his many academic degrees and membership in such exalted groups as the British Interplanetary Society, he is also a member of the National Entertainment Conference and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Is he a scientist, an entertainer, a huckster peddling lectures, books and movies, or a man with a message?

He's at least all of these, and probably more.

Friedman is always interested in hearing about new sightings.

Seen anything? Phone the Times first. Then you can write to Friedman at UFORI, P.O. Box 502, Union City, Calif. 94587.

Discrimination charge backed by alderman

By NORMAN GIDNEY

Discrimination by landlords against native Indians trying to find apartments or houses to rent in Victoria is undeniable, a Victoria alderman said today.

"I have no hesitation in saying native Indians are discriminated against," said Ald. Robin Blencoe.

"I would concur. I've seen it in my work."

However, there appears little the government can do to stop the practice.

An officer with the Rentalsman's office said that under the Residential Tenancy Act, landlords have the right to chose their tenants.

"If they want to have nothing but blue-eyed and blonde tenants, there's nothing in the act that says they can't," he said.

Blencoe was asked about comments by Butch Dick, director of the Native Friendship Centre in Fernwood, that on many occasions Indians had been refused accommodation just because of their race.

"They (landlords) find some excuse, like we're full," said Blencoe.

He said he was recently in Esquimalt with a social worker looking into the street kids problem when they visited an apartment block fully occupied by Indians.

All had just received eviction notices, totally illegally, according to the alderman who lives in Fernwood where there is a high proportion of Indians.

Said Dick: "It just got to the point where it got so bad that we had to say something."

"There were appointments made. There was a vacancy. And they were turned away at the door.

"It was pretty blatant. One said: 'We don't accept Indians here'."

He said there's never enough low-rent accommodation but the discrimination by landlords has aggravated the situation to the point where now a dozen native families are living in motels along Gorge Road because they can't find proper housing.

And the housing that is available to Indians is often in poor condition, Dick added.

The owners knowingly violate rules established under legislation and by the rentalsman's office because the landlords realize that native people don't know the rules.

The Friendship Centre plans to start a program to tell native people of their rights as tenants to proper accommodation, said Dick.

Public complaints about discrimination have already started to help. One woman called this morning with an offer of room and board. Dick said Victorians who have space or a house for rent can call the centre at Fernwood and Gladstone, 384-3211 or 384-4642.

While family accommodation is the most pressing need now, after Christmas the centre is asked to find bed and breakfast accommodation or housekeeping rooms for the large number of native students who come to Camosun College and the University of Victoria.

Can city take 2,000 delegates?

That would be a record 2,000 delegates for a city that has trouble dealing with 700.

"I'm not kidding about this — we can swing the convention for Victoria," Charman said today.

"But Victoria has to get cracking to provide adequate facilities."

These include:

— A convention hall that can seat 2,000 people theatre style.

— Expansion of banquet facilities by The Empress and other downtown hotels.

— Improved transportation links with the mainland.

Charman said only Toronto and Winnipeg can handle the CREA national convention comfortably but Victoria could swing it with a few more facilities and a bit of ingenuity.

Charman has already transferred one CREA event to Victoria: a real estate education course in April that will require 150 hotel rooms for a week.

CREA is holding its annual convention today in Vancouver where it is using unusual methods to handle the crowds. Banquets will be held in two hotels simultaneously, with four speakers being driven back and forth.

"We could use the same approach in Victoria. We used to think we needed banquet space for 2,000 but it's no longer true. Banquets can be held in two hotels at once. Maybe three. We could use the lobby of The Empress. We should start doing things that are different."

There are only two basic needs: a meeting hall that will hold 2,000 in close but comfortable seating and improved transportation.

Charman tried to bring 800 delegates to Victoria Wednesday for a one-day visit but, despite months of trying, transportation could be arranged for only 300.

"I wanted to book a ferry and guarantee at least 800 passengers, maybe 1,000, but it isn't allowed. The best we could do was get space for 300 and arrange a special buffet."

He is the third Victorian to hold the position in recent years. Philip (Pip) Holmes was president in 1966, going on to be world president in 1975-76. Norman Ross was Canadian president in 1978.

Charman has been B.C. president and chairman of the national association's legislation committee. He said he will approach the federal government for several changes in legislation.

Roadblock nets Prairie fugitive

Esquimalt police went looking for drunk drivers Wednesday night and ended up capturing a fugitive from the Prairies.

A police spokesman said officers, using the BATvan set up a roadblock in the 1100-block Craigflower and in two hours stopped 110 vehicles.

No one was charged with drinking and driving but officers, checking out one of persons on the national police computer system, discovered he was driving a stolen car. The man was wanted on a Canada-wide warrant for parole violation in an unidentified Prairie province.

The 42-year-old suspect is to appear in provincial court charged with theft over $200 and possession of stolen property.

Stargell's star shone brightest of the Bucs

His four hits, including a World Series-winning home run, and his leadership in Pittsburgh Pirates' record-tying comeback would seem to merit such reward.

Willie Stargell, the 38-year-old father of the Pirates' baseball family, hands the ornaments to his teammates for meritorious achievement. And the cheering in the streets of Pittsburgh this morning — following Wednesday night's 4-1 victory over Baltimore Orioles which capped the rally from a 3-1 deficit in games — told how meritorious that performance was.

And if it didn't, a visit from President Carter did. With his Secret Service entourage, Carter joined basseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn in saluting Stargell, the man they call Pops, and the rest of the Pirates.

"I wanted to ask him if he had any peanuts on him, but there were too many Secret Service men around and I was afraid to ask," added Stargell, voted the Series's most valuable player.

It was Stargell, a mountain of a man, who provided the muscle and reliever Kent Tekulve — the thin man of baseball — who helped lock up the Pirates' seventh-game triumph.

Stargell's hits included two doubles and that two-run, sixth-inning homer. Tekulve choked an eighth-inning Baltimore rally and set the Orioles down in order in the ninth — two on strikeouts — to clinch the fifth Series title in Pittsburgh's seven championship appearances,

The Pirates became the fourth team in history to make up a 3-1 deficit in a seven-game Series. The others were the 1958 New York Yankees, 1968 Detroit Tigers and the 1925 Pirates.

After Rich Dauer's home run gave Baltimore a 1-0 lead in the third inning, Stargell sent Pittsburgh ahead 2-1. The Pirates added two runs in the eighth.

"I feel bad," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver. "We won 102 ball games in the regular season. We won 108 the whole year. We needed 109. We fell one short."

It was the first Pirates' Series triumph since 1971, when the late Roberto Clemente led them to a victory over the Orioles in seven games. Clemente later died when his private plane crashed on a mercy mission to hurricane-stricken Nicaragua.

Stargell was 12-for-30 in the Series, hit .400, tied Reggie Jackson's record for total bases with 25 and set a record with seven extra-base hits on three homers and four doubles. He also became the 40th player in Series history — the fourth this year — to collect four hits in a game.

The absence of the long ball when it was needed took its toll on the Orioles. They managed just four hits Wednesday night, snapped a 21-inning scoreless streak with Dauer's homer in the third, and finished with just one run in the final 28 innings.

The Pirates amassed 81 hits in the seven games. The Orioles had 54.

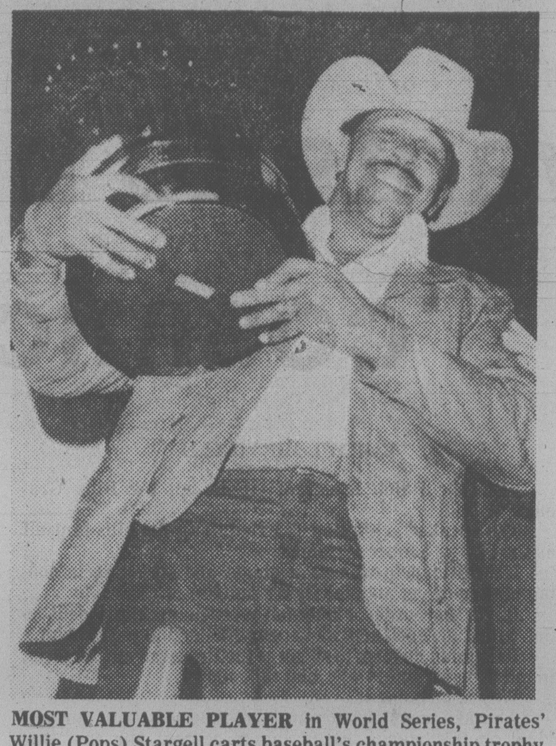
Phil Garner hit .500 in the Series to lead the Pirates' batters. He finished the season with a 24-game hitting streak — the last 14 games of the regular season, three playoff games and seven Series games. He was the only player to hit in all seven Series games.

One last thing on Stargell. He showed his leadership in the eighth inning when Tekulve came in to try and get the Pirates out of a jam.

Stargell walked over to the reliever and told him to show people why Tekulve was the best relief pitcher in baseball.

"If you're not ready, I'll pitch and you play first base," Stargell told Tekulve.

It broke the tension for Tekulve. He smiled, then went on to break the Orioles' hearts.



MOST VALUABLE PLAYER in World Series, Pirates' Willie (Pops) Stargell carts baseball's championship trophy off plane on arrival in Pittsburgh today. (AP Wirephoto).

Sandown eyeing brighter weekend

By BILL WALKER

Things will probably be better sorted out by the weekend, but the opening day of the Capital City Turf Club's fall thoroughbred meeting at Sandown Park Wednesday could hardly be called a ringing success.

At least not in the manner that club officials hoped it would be.

"Cautiously optimistic" might be a better way to describe the inaugural.

The crowd was only 1,597, the smallest opening-day turnout in the five-year history of the CCTC fall meeting and the mutuel handle was a disappointing $103,412, the second lowest for an opening day.

The all-time low was in 1975 when $97,182 passed through the machines. Last year the opening-day handle was $114,638.

The racing was good enough with favorites or near public picks coming down in seven of the eight races on the card, and the weather was fine.

There may be extenuating circumstances as Wednesday is not a traditional good opening day or even a good day during a meeting.

Racing director Aubrey Davies further explained some of the problems:

"We were short a few horses because the last day at Vancouver (when 19 races were held) was hard on everbody and delayed some owners from shipping when they normally would.

"The cost of shipping horses has also gone up and some trainers have decided to trailer their horses two at a time rather than pay the higher charges. We have over 200 horses at present and expect at least 40 to 50 more by the weekend. Eleven are coming from Calgary."

In addition, Davies suggested that some owners may have decided to race at Calgary or Yakima, where tracks are operating at this time.

"All this doesn't help," he added. "However, I have been on the phone and I will know much better by the weekend."

CCTC president George Harknett naturally was disappointed but he said he too was confident the problems would soon take care of themselves, particularly as the purse structure had been supplemented to assure the horseman a fair return.

He also said he thought that perhaps the seventh and final game of the baseball World Series might have had an effect on the crowd total and suggested there would be a significant increase in both crowd total and mutuel play on the weekend as Friday and Saturday are normally better days.

As it was, form for the most part held with the only double figure of the day coming in the first race when Rocky Canyon returned $14.30 on the front end and the only really healthy gimmick payoff coming in the third when The Aryan ($7.70) combined with the overlooked Mid Drive for a $133.40 quinella.

Otherwise, favorites or near favorites ruled the day and the jockey race gave indications of being a tight battle for leading honors.

Three riders — Chad Hoverson, Garth Carter and Mark Walker — each had two winners. Hoverson was up on Rocky Canyon in the first and Salt Chuck ($8.10) in the fourth. Carter, the 1975 riding champion, had the mount on Mr. Giff ($4.50) in the second and Bonnie Lois ($6.90) in the fifth while Walker, last year's leading rider was up on Snow Me In ($3.50) in the featured seventh and Ack Ack War ($5.60) in the eighth.

The track was rated "fast" but perhaps would be better referred to as "deep" with only Snow Me In of the front runners really having it her way. However, it should tighten up after a few days, weather permitting. But that isn't promising acording to the forecast.

Australia facing tough task in test

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Australia, having followed on 212 behind India, was 189 for three after the fourth day of the fourth cricket test Wednesday and in danger of going two down in the six-match series.

The Australian's cause declined sharply in the final session when Andrew Hilditch and Allan Border, partners in a 127-run second wicket stand, were both out — Hilditch for five and Border for 46.

Kim Hughes and Graham Yallop batted the remaining minutes, putting on 33 for the fourth wicket.

Australia was 258 for nine in its first innings and at the start of the day and reached 298 — just 13 runs short of saving the follow on — before Jim Higgs was last out, having added 52 for the 10th wicket with Kevin Wright who finished with 55 not out.

Rick Darling was out cheaply at the start of the Australian second innings, but Hilditch and Border then dug in, surviving until shortly before the close.

Lakers sued by agent

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta lawyer Jack Manton has filed a suit in superior court here against Los Angeles Lakers, claiming the National Basketball Association team induced star guard Earvin (Magic) Johnson to drop him as an agent.

In the suit, Jack Manton asks $1 million in punitive damages and legal fees and "actual damages in an amount to be ascertained."

Canucks reverse pattern on Blues

Times News Services

Vancouver coach Harry Neale says National Hockey League home openers are the "pits," and St. Louis Blues agree.

"Not only do you have to win but you have to play real well," Neale said after his Canucks turned the tables on the Blues 5-1 in St. Louis Wednesday night.

"It would've been much better for both of us if we'd both won our openers," said Neale, whose team avenged a 5-2 setback it absorbed on home ice last week.

"But ours was better than theirs . . . I thought we played much better. Home openers are tough — especially for a young team."

Vancouver, which has settled down to post a 2-0-1 record since its inglorious bow, capitalized on power plays to take a 2-0 lead during the first 40 minutes.

One goal was by Stan Smyl, his first of the year, while St. Louis was two players short. Then, with the teams at even strength, Don Lever's third goal of the season was followed by Smyl's second 21 seconds later.

Defenceman Kevin McCarthy and Rick Blight scored the others.

In other games, Chicago Black Hawks surprised Montreal Canadiens 3-2 in Chicago, Buffalo defeated Hartford 3-1, Los Angeles edged Pittsburgh 5-4, Detroit got by Winnipeg 5-1 and Toronto handed Minnesota North Stars their first defeat 6-2.

Rich Preston score twice for Chicago to hand the Canadiens their first loss of the season.

Preston's second goal in the third period gave Chicago a 3-1 lead, but Lafleur cut the deficit to one a minute later.

Los Angeles showed off a powerful new scoring line of Charlie Simmer, Marcel Dionne and Dave Taylor which accounted for 10 points, three of them goals.

Taylor picked up three points on two goals and an assist, Dionne had one goal and two assists and Simmer one goal and three assists.

Simmer leads the NHL in scoring after four games with six goals and six assists while Dionne is second with two goals and nine assists.

Taylor is tied for third with Washington's Dennis Maruk, both at nine points.

Buffalo's Craig Ramsay scored two goals and assisted on the third to keep Hartford in the winless column.

Gilbert Perreault scored what proved to be the winning goal in the third period and also assisted on Ramsay's last score.

Island tennis players make mark for all to see

When Ted Smythe tells you he's delighted and Roger Skillings is excited you can bet your best racquet it all has something to do with tennis.

As president of the Vancouver Island Tennis Association (VITA) Ted makes no bones about the fact he is thrilled with the way Island players have made their mark this year.

"As well as Wendy Barlow and Nina and Jennifer Bland doing well on the international tennis scene, we have a Canadian champion here for the first time in a long while," explains Ted.

He is talking, of course, about Enid Jackson, the stylish one-time English grass court player, who in August won the Canadian senior women's title in Vernon. Enid shocked top-seeded Muriel Allison of Montreal, 6-1, 6-3, in the semi-finals, went on to beat Lee Dobson of Vancouver, 6-3, 6-2, to take the singles crown and then teamed with Sally Hemeon also of Victoria to win the doubles title.

Ted feels that one of the highlights as far as Vancouver Islanders were concerned was Nina Bland's win over second-seeded Rita Tomanova (who earlier in the year had defeated Virginia Wade) in the Canadian Open in Toronto.

* * *

Closer to the local scene, Ted is thrilled with the way the Island team won the tennis at the B.C. Summer Games in Richmond.

"Russ Hartley won the men's singles gold medal, Marty Taylor and Scott Braley took the doubles gold medal, Steve Perks and Andrea Wiles added the mixed doubles gold and Sandra Moss and Jo-Anne Stone took the women's doubles silver medal," Ted points out. "And in the juniors, Tamsin Allen won the silver medal in girls's singles and Tessa Crofton and Elizabeth Ellis also took a silver for girls' doubles."

Tennis at the Summer Games is, of course, restricted to the province's non-ranking players.

And, to ensure the Island has a steady flow of young players who will continue to carry the banner of success both near and far, VITA has an extensive junior program already underway.

* * *

In previous years, top juniors went over to work out with Aussie pro Ian Pomeranke at Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club but this year, in a program that began last weekend and runs through to the middle of December, two groups of juniors will get 12 hours of instruction under Hartley, the pro at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Hartley and Ted Smythe's 19-year-old son Peter should be the main contenders for the men's singles title when VITA stages its last tournament of the year — the Racquet Club Invitational Open from Nov. 3 to 10.

Peter, who starts in January on a partial tennis scholarship at the University of Oklahoma, and Russ have played four times in tournaments this year and have two wins apiece. The other player to watch could be up-and-coming Dale Willard, who is only 15 but ousted both Scott Braley and Marty Taylor on his way to reaching the final of the Last Chance Tournament in Nanaimo last month.

* * *

And now back to Roger Skillings, tennis administrator for the municipality of Oak Bay.

He is very excited, he says, about the plan to set aside one court at Oak Bay's indoor facility, The Tennis Place, for private booking.

"All our lessons and instruction will be restricted to Courts 3 and 4 and Court 2 will be available for the public to book at all times," Roger explains.

"But Court 1 will be kept for reservation in one and-a-half-hour blocks for eight consecutive weeks," he adds.

The idea is that you pay $80 (that's $10 for the court for an hour and-a-half) and have it reserved for you at the same time on the same day once a week for eight weeks. (You can pencil in the times you want starting at 9 a.m. this Saturday at the Oak Bay Rec Centre).

"It gives you your own court when you want it without all the fuss of phoning to book each time," Roger explains.

Hawks connect in overtime

By The Canadian Press

Tim Tookey scored at 3:42 of the overtime period to give Portland Winter Hawks a 4-3 victory over the visiting Lethbridge Broncos in one of three Western Hockey League games played Wednesday.

In other action, Brandon Wheat Kings defeated Billings Bighorns 9-6 and Medicine Hat Tigers blasted the winless Great Falls Americans 7-3.

Lethbridge defenceman Jay Soleway forced overtime with the only goal of the third period.

Doug Morrison had given the Broncos a 1-0 lead after one period and tallied again in the second frame, but power-play goals by Florent Robidoux, Jim Dobson and Rick Benning gave the Winter Hawks the lead heading into the final period.

Clint Malarchuk stopped 38 shots for the winners, while Dumba blocked 36 shots in the Lethbridge goal.

Medicine Hat's easy win over the winless Americans enabled the Tigers to move into first place in the Eastern Division, one point ahead of the Broncos.

In Brandon, Steve Patrick scored three goals, including two 39 seconds apart in the first period, as the Wheat Kings won for the fourth time in five games.

Off the ice, Calgary Wranglers have dealt off three players. The Wranglers sent right winger Dale Cross to Billings for Brian Taylor and a player to be named later, shipped Monte Trottier to Billings for the rights to midgets Steve Mounkes of Calgary and Billy Vince of Vancouver and sent Glen Rand to Regina Pats to complete a deal which had earlier brought Greg Chudiak to Calgary.

Bodger triggers Flyers explosion

There were goals galore in South Island Junior "B" Hockey League action Wednesday night and up-island teams got most of the benefits.

Dave Bodger scored five goals as Fuller Lake Flyers whipped Juan de Fuca Gulls 8-3 at Fuller Lake while Tim White scored on a penalty shot with only 25 seconds remaining to give host Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking an 8-8 tie with Esquimalt Legion.

Keith Mazurenko scored two goals and Mike Eastman one for Fuller Lake while Ross Anderson, Don Fraser and Darrell Krupa scored for the Gulls.

Goalkeeper Jim Lebitschnig made 35 stops for the Flyers and Mikee Spiteri 41 for Juan de Fuca.

White and Rob Frost each had three goals for Lake Cowichan. Glen Smith and Grant Toporowski each had one. Brian Orr scored three times for Esquimalt. Alton Davies had two and Bruce Jeffries, Mike Bradstock and Les Layton singles.

Merchants win

Mike Adamek emerged as the game hero Wednesday night when he scored the winning goal in Juan de Fuca Merchants' 3-2 victory over Esquimalt Maple Leafs in South Island Big Six Hockey League action.

Dennis Head and Dan Waslushka scored the other goals for Juan de Fuca. Bob Martin and Terry Parsons scored for the Leafs.

In another game, Victoria Athletics trounced Princess Pats 14-0. It was the first game for the PPCLI team.

RX-7

PERFORMANCE RUNS IN THE FAMILY.

The more you look at the 1980 Mazda RX-7, the more you'll like the idea of getting behind the wheel.

For the RX-7 is the sportscar—in terms of performance, engineering and handling. Not to mention quality standard features like AM/FM stereo with power antenna, steel-belted radials, quartz clock, a tachometer that's also a voltmeter, tinted glass—a most impressive list.

And then, continuing right on in the RX-7 tradition, you'll find the new 1980 Mazda 626 to be the luxury car with an affordable price tag. In terms of engineering, durability and performance, the 626 is virtually an RX-7 clone. In terms of comfort and ride and wealth of standard features, the 626 stands on its own as a superb value. And while you may find the car itself overwhelming, you'll be underwhelmed by its price.

See the 626 and/or the RX-7 soon. At your Mazda dealer's now.

What's New In AUDIO AND VIDEO

Consumer electronics products tailored to individual needs.

By
DAVID LACHENBRUCH
Editorial Director
TELEVISION DIGEST

High technology tailored for human needs. That best describes the new consumer electronic products now being demonstrated at area audio and video dealers.

The influence of the computer is evident in every family of these new products. The tiny microprocessor — a mini-computer on a thumbnail-sized chip of semiconductor material — and other sophisticated integrated circuits make it possible to design equipment which can accomplish functions never before attempted in products for the consumer.

New in hi-fi.

In the new audio products, the sound can be just about as life-like as you want.

As in the new TV sets, you just push a button or scan-tuning bar and there's your station.

Cassette recorders automatically adjust themselves to the type of tape you're using, rewind at the end of the tape and even let you locate specific musical selections by mini-computer control. Record turntables and changers have reached the same level of automation.

Of course, there are many highly sophisticated hi-fi components to accommodate you, and to reward you with sound of previously uattainable clarity.

If your home doesn't have space for large audio components, there are new components for you, too.

Miniaturized high-fidelity stereo components now deliver unbelievably good sounds from tiny packages, providing another increase in freedom of choice.

If you prefer your sound all-in-one, you can have it your way once again. Today's new compact stereo systems are capable of delivering sound rivaling that of high-quality components.

Also, the same good sound you've become accustomed to at home is now available in the automobile, thanks to new autosound components and ensembles.

If you're a perfectionist when it comes to the sound of your music, there's no better time to buy high fidelity components.

Any review of the range of hi fi equipment introduced by manufacturers last summer at that mammoth Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago would have to conclude that those companies have fine-tuned their audio components to the point of perfection.

While there are many subjective elements involved in the purchase of a sound system, audio, component specifications have been devised to tell you - the consumer — as much of the story as possible.

And what a story that is today.

Ask your dealer about these products when you buy your hi fi system. In fact you might ask him about components you can now buy which suppress noise and scratches on your records as you play them. Buying a good quality cartridge can also help.

You can see that a hi fi component system is not just equipment and accessories. Perhaps the most critical component is you, the listener.

In the weeks to come we will attempt to help you the consumer, with this regular feature covering everything that's new in Audio and Video. For more information please call us. We'll be more than happy to help.

English close in on berth in final

Times News Services

England beat Northern Ireland 5-1 in a European soccer championship Group 1 match at Belfast Wednesday and now needs only one point from two remaining qualifying matches to be sure of a place in the finals next year.

In another Group 1 match Wednesday, Ireland beat Bulgaria 3-0 at Dublin but, with England's victory, retained only a slim chance of advancing. Ireland now is four points behind England and the English would have to lose both remaining games for the Irish to have a chance of advancing on goal difference.

Austria retained a one-point lead over Belgium atop the Group 2 standings after a 1-1 draw against Scotland played at Glasgow. Scotland was left in fourth place in the standings, four points behind Austria. Belgium stayed in the race with a 2-0 win over Portugal in a match played at Brussels.

CUPE votes to dump CLC chief McDermott

QUEBEC (CP) — The country's largest union called Wednesday for the resignation of Dennis McDermott, head of the Canadian Labor Congress, on grounds he has turned his back on the trouble-plagued postal workers.

But the most powerful labor leader in the country said through an assistant that he has no intention of bowing to the demand of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

"We have lost faith in brother McDermott," said the resignation policy adopted by the rank-and-file members of CUPE, in a vote of more than 1,000 to one, at their national policy convention.

The policy was adopted after an emotionally-charged debate in which McDermott was accused of betraying the labor movement by not rising to the defence of the 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers and its leader Jean-Claude Parrot.

CUPE is the largest affiliate in the 2.3-million-member Canadian Labor Congress, an umbrella organization uniting most unions in the country.

The more than 257,000 members of CUPE include hydro workers, garbage collectors, university professors and nursing aides as well as a wide range of other employees under federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Altogether, CUPE adopted three policy resolutions, each one more critical of McDermott. Delegates rejected informal calls to disaffiliate from the CLC to prove they mean business.

The vote was a dramatic climax to three days of behind-the-scenes grumbling about McDermott. It marked a turning point in CUPE-CLC relations which soured a year ago when the postal workers began a legal strike.

CUPE resolutions and spokesmen said McDermott refused to back the postal workers when the strike began, told them to obey Parliament's back-to-work law later and never showed support for their leader Parrot.

Parrot was sentenced to three months in jail and 18 months probation for defying the back-to-work law, His appeal hearing began this week.

McDermott's assistant in Ottawa said in a telephone interview that the labor leader will ignore the demand to step down.

As for the charges he betrayed postal workers: "He doesn't see any point in debating an academic matter like that."

The assistant also confirmed that McDermott changed his mind about addressing the CUPE convention today as scheduled for fear of censure.

"He had found out that some of the delegates were planning demonstrations when he was going to speak.

"It definitely wasn't worth it to travel in order to exchange insults," the assistant said.

McDermott made his decision not to show up at the convention before the resignation policy was even debated. When CUPE president Grace Hartman announced he wasn't coming, the packed union hall erupted in cheers and applause.

Mrs. Hartman, re-elected for a third term as CUPE president, did not personally call for McDermott's resignation, but made a point of saying CUPE is dissatisfied with him.

McDermott was elected to head the CLC in April, 1978, after 10 years as Canadian director of the United Auto Workers.

The dump-McDermott policy states that he violated the basic principles of his labor organization.

A second policy pledges CUPE to criticize McDermott at the 1980 CLC convention, saying there is concern he "will adopt similar positions when CUPE or any other union is faced with severe anti-union repression in the future."

A third policy says the federal government will be asked to drop all outstanding charges against postal union leaders, to reinstate workers fired during the dispute and to bargain in good faith in the future.

Air radio talks to start again

A treasury board spokesman said Wednesday the government has agreed to the request by the Public Service Staff Relations Board which oversees mediation between federal employees and the government. But he did not know the union position.

The board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada, which represents the radio operators, were not immediately available for comment.

Earlier, Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens said in the Commons he hopes negotiations will resume soon with the 1,100 radio operators. He was replying to Ray Skelly, New Democratic MP for Comox-Powell River, who expressed concern the strike might hamper search and rescue efforts on the West Coast.

About 40 per cent of the operators are termed essential and are to stay on the job during the strike which began Tuesday morning.

The operators provide navigational help, weather information and flight planning services at 113 airports across the country.

Answering Skelly, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said the defence department is providing search and rescue assistance along the West Coast.

Over the long run, the joint search and rescue satellite program with the United States and France should be a great help in rescue efforts, he said.

Canada has joined the U.S. and France in the $13 million project which will equip American weather satellites with sensors able to pick up and relay emergency signals from aircraft and vessels.

Foothills flop laid to Clark

OTTAWA (UPC) — Prime Minister Joe Clark has denied his government had "wasted time" by not clearly advising the United States it preferred an all-Canadian pipeline route over proposed tanker movement of Alaskan oil to the lower 48 states.

Opposition MPs charged Wednesday the United States rejected Foothills Oil Pipeline Co. Ltd.'s proposal to move Alaskan oil through Canada to the lower states "without a fight" from the federal government.

"There was never any doubt about support for the Foothills route, no doubt at all," Clark said in response to intensive questioning in the House of Commons led by Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau.

Liberal MP John Munro demanded to know if the Clark government had discussed with U.S. officials the thousands of jobs involved in building the pipeline or the threat of environmental damage posed by tanker traffic.

"Having listened to the prime minister, I am astounded that he would let an opportunity like this go by without a fight by the Canadian government," Munro said.

U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus told President Jimmy Carter this week he supported the "Northern Tier" pipeline route. Carter was expected to make his preference known by Dec. 6.

The Northern Tier route involves movement of Alaskan oil down the British Columbia coast by tanker to a port on Washington state's Puget Sound, then by pipeline across the northern states to St. Paul, Minn.

After Andrus' announcement, Foothills withdrew its proposed pipeline project — leaving Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co. Ltd as the only Canadian bidder for the contract.

In Vancouver, the National Energy Board will decide today whether to approve a motion by environmentalists that Trans Mountain be required to supply a detailed study of the environmental impact of its proposals.

Observers said that if the NEB approved the motion it could delay its hearings for about four weeks. Trans Mountain president Ken Hall said any delay would kill his company's proposed tanker-pipeline project.

Trudeau said his Liberal government had told the Americans last April Canada supported the all-land route. He demanded to know if the Conservative government had pushed to have the Foothills proposal approved.

Hostage taker gunned down

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — A man who had held his mother-in-law and one of his young children hostage at gunpoint for more than three hours was shot by city police early today in front of a north-end house.

The mother-in-law, carrying the child in her arms, ran out of the house moments before members of a police special weapons and tactics team opened fire on the man when he refused to put down a 12-gauge shotgun.

He was struck by at least three bullets and fell in the street as the woman and child crouched beside a police cruiser. The man, in his mid-20s, was reported in serious condition in hospital.

Police opened fire after the man fired one shot and ignored pleas to put down the shotgun.

"We had to shoot him, we didn't have a hell of a lot of choice," said Police Chief Ralph Nichelson.

About 20 minutes before the hostage-taking incident ended the man, who a neighbor said was having marital problems, yelled to police:

"Get my wife here and maybe we'll talk this over . . . get her here right now."

'Let's save Petro-Can and sell Joe Clark'

QUEBEC (UPC) — New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent has come up with his own joking solution to the Petro-Can issue: "Save Petro-Can and sell Joe Clark."

Broadbent told more than 1,000 delegates to the Canadian Union of Public Employees convention Wednesday that the government's "obsession" to split Petro-Canada into two parts was the prime minister's biggest mistake since taking office this spring.

A recommendation from a task force on Petro-Canada suggested giving company shares to the public, he said, but the task force did not underline that tax revenue will pay for exploration in the Arctic and Atlantic Canada.

Broadbent said Clark was "socializing the debt and privatizing the profit."

"Just as Petro-Canada approaches its usefulness to us as a people, just as we were creating a successful, powerful Canadian firm in the field that would open us to real competition to the multinationals, Joe Clark decides to destroy it."

Flora censors censorship

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald raised the possibility Wednesday of Canadian intervention to fight press censorship in Latin American countries that receive Canadian aid.

Miss MacDonald told the Inter American Press Association that the Progressive Conservative government in future Canada will pay more attention to countries on this side of the globe.

She also questioned whether Canada should continue to provide newsprint to Guyana when the Guyanese government doesn't allow newsprint to be distributed to a newspaper whose editorial policy opposes the government.

Humorist Perelman found dead at 75

PERELMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — S. J. Perelman, who gave Groucho Marx his funniest lines and The New Yorker magazine readers some of their heartiest laughs in his half-century as a humorist, has died at 75.

Perelman was found dead Wednesday in his room at the Gramercy Park Hotel. The cause of death was not announced, but friends said he died of natural causes. His lawyer, James Maythias, said Perelman had "seemed fine" when he saw him the day before.

William Shawn, editor of The New Yorker, called Perelman "one of the last of the writers of pure humor in this country," a writer who so entertained his readers that "they sometimes overlooked his great originality and his literary brilliance."

Perelman described himself as "button-cute, rapier-keen, cucumber-cool and gall-bitter," but his readers remembered little of the bitter.

Instead they recalled a Perelman hero "chafing at The Bit, a tavern in Portsmouth," and living on "cameo brooches and the few ptarmigan which fell to the ptrigger of his pfowling piece."

'Dreadful slur' irks princess

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Princess Margaret is extremely distressed by "this dreadful slur" — her reported reference to the Irish as pigs — her private secretary said Wednesday night.

The private secretary, Lord Napier, also reported that Princess Margaret said she did not make the remark attributed to her in Chicago — "The Irish, they're pigs."

Lord Napier met reporters in a hotel lobby here soon after Princess Margaret arrived on the third stop of her U.S. tour to raise funds for the Royal Opera House in London.

Lord Napier told reporters: "Princess Margaret has asked me to say she is extremely distressed by this dreadful slur."

Reports from Chicago quoted Mayor Jane Byrne as saying Princess Margaret used the word pigs, but was referring to the Irish Republican Army and not to the Irish people as a whole. There were also reports the princess had used the word "jigs" not "pigs."

In San Francisco, sources close to the organizers of a pro-Irish demonstration said the demonstrators intend to release as many as 1,000 pigs in the city after Princess Margaret arrives there on Sunday.

The sources said 60 persons, mostly Irish-Americans, are planning the demonstration and expect about 500 persons will turn out for it.

Chum dummy tries hitchhike to California

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Robert Foster of Evergreen, Colo., had to cancel a visit to his old friend Michael Leydon of Menlo Park, so he sent a hitchhiking plywood dummy named Herman instead.

But Herman, like many a California tourist, has become lost on the state's freeways.

Exhibiting a sign showing his destination was "San Francisco," Herman set off on his adventure Sept. 2 hitchhiking a ride the first day to Tabernash, Colo., where his first chauffeur propped him up along the highway for his next ride.

Herman's journey west was a slow one as he was reported in various towns along U.S. 80. He was arrested in Grandby, Colo., for hitchhiking on the highway and sentenced to two days in jail, but released with an admonishment from a good-natured sheriff.

Herman made it through Wyoming without mishap, but disappeared for a few days in Salt Lake City until Foster learned through a postcard from a television station that he was found "all covered with dirt."

A television reporter dusted Herman off, and placed him upright along the highway where he caught a ride to Wendover, Nev.

Foster said he received various photographs showing Herman with an arm around two different truck drivers and in two Nevada casinos, including a photograph that showed him with an outstretched hand ready to pull the handle of a slot machine.

Herman hitched a ride to California with Don Hackman of Ogden, Utah, who said he helped load Herman into a friend's car in Turlock for the trip to Leydon's home near San Francisco.

Hackman said the friend, a newcomer to the state, couldn't find Menlo Park so he dropped Herman off at the San Bruno exit on Highway 101, just south of San Francisco.

That was on Oct. 3, and Leydon still hasn't heard from Herman.

Herman is described as a 6-foot-4 smiling dummy, dressed in bib overalls and white turtleneck sweater.

"If and when he shows up, there will be a big party for him and everybody who helped him," Leydon promised.

Greek poet given Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — The 1979 Nobel Prize for literature was awarded today to Greek poet and essayist Odysseus Elytis, known in his own country as "the poet of the Aegean Sea."

The Swedish Academy awarded the $191,000 prize for "his poetry, which against the background of Greek tradition, depicts with sensuous strength and intellectual clearsightedness modern man's struggle for freedom and creativeness."

Elytis, whose real name is Odysseus Alepoudhelis, was born in 1911 at Herakleion on the island of Crete. After growing up on Lesbos, he moved to Athens where he studied law.

Elytis is the second Greek poet to receive the coveted award. Giorgios Seferis won it in 1963.

Canadian-born novelist Saul Bellow, who is a U.S. citizen, won the award in 1976.

Times' talks collapse, paper's fate known soon

LONDON (Reuter) — The Times, Britain's oldest daily newspaper, appeared in danger of closing permanently after the collapse of protracted union-management talks.

Board meetings later today were to decide the fate of the Times, The Sunday Times and three supplements, which have not appeared since Nov. 30.

The newspapers' Canadian owners, the International Thomson Organisation, set a deadline on negotiations that expired Wednesday night. The management had said that if agreement was not reached by then, the newspapers would be closed.

Les Dixon, a union official, said he expected the newspapers will be closed shortly: "I have never met a more intransigent management. It's a tragedy."

Taiwan treaty move tripped by U.S. judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Future U.S.-Chinese relations were thrown into limbo today by a federal judge's ruling that President Carter cannot terminate the Mutual Defence Treaty with Taiwan as scheduled Jan. 1 unless Congress approves.

In a decision that stung the White House and foreign policymakers, U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch late Wednesday nullified Carter's action and said he was blocking Secretary of State Cyrus Vance from ending the 1954 treaty.

Gasch, ruling on a court challenge by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and 25 other conservatives, said the president's move to terminate the pact "must receive the approval of two-thirds of the U.S. Senate or a majority of both houses of Congress ... to be effective under our Constitution."

While a president can recommend treaty terminations, he said, the final decision "cannot be made by the president alone."

The administration, sensing substantial opposition in Congress to the treaty's termination, did not request action and insists Carter had the authority to halt the treaty independently.

Attorney-General Benjamin Civiletti said the Justice Department would appeal Gasch's ruling "as expeditiously as possible" to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, a department spokesman said.

There was no indication that the administration would seek approval for Carter's action from Congress unless it loses the suit in higher courts.

Retrieve IOS Cornfeld plan

GENEVA (Reuter) — U.S. financier Bernard Cornfeld said Wednesday he plans legal action in Canada to take out of liquidation a collapsed mutual funds company he formerly headed and use its assets to reimburse clients who lost their money.

Cornfeld, 53, cleared Monday of a fraud charge in Switzerland after a four-week trial, told a news conference that about $500 million of assets belonging to Investors Overseas Services were in the hands of liquidators around the world, including $30 million in Canada.

He said something should be done so that these funds could be paid out to stockholders and clients who had lost money.

"I am planning to launch a lawsuit in Canada to take IOS Ltd., (parent company of the former IOS mutual funds empire) out of liquidation, and to turn the corporation over to its legitimate shareholders," Cornfeld said.

Cornfeld founded IOS in 1956 to sell mutual funds to small investors. It grew into a conglomerate based in Geneva and at one point handled $2 billion in investment funds. However, it ran into trouble in 1969 and collapsed two years later after Cornfeld lost his position as chief executive in 1970.

Deserts S.A. for Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A newspaper says a man who said he worked 20 years for South Africa's secret police has been granted political asylum in Sweden. The man said he can confirm reports about police persecution and torture in South Africa.

"I beg them to forgive me, all who have been jailed, tortured and separated from their families with my direct or indirect support," Alexander Lambert is quoted as saying.

There was no immediate comment from Swedish or South African authorities.

Lambert, 42, told his story to a leading editor of the mass-circulation Dagens Nyheter. He said he was suprised when South African passport authorities gave him and his family permission to go to Sweden.

He said he told the authorities they were going on vacation.

On the way to Sweden, he told his wife for the first time that he was a long-time agent of South Africa's secret police, BOSS. He also told her he would not return to South Africa, Lambert told Dagens Nyheter.

He was interrogated by Swedish police and granted asylum for himself, his wife and their six children.

Lambert, labelled as "colored" in South Africa, meaning of mixed race, had no previous contacts with Sweden.

Guerrillas accept U.K. plan

Times News Services

LONDON — The Patriotic Front guerrilla leaders, in a major retreat at the stalled Zimbabwe Rhodesia conference, today accepted Britain's blueprint for an independence constitution and agreed to return to the conference table.

The conference spokesman said afterwards guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe told Carrington they will seek no further discussion on the constitution if they are satisfied on what they described as "vital issues" relating to transitional arrangements."

These "vital issues" included control of the defence forces, judiciary, police and civil service during an interim period before complete independence.

The spokesman said Carrington "welcomed this statement and now looks forward to begining discussion of the transitional arrangements in plenary session."

No time was set for the next plenary session of all three delegations but officials said it probably will be Friday.

They had been barred by Carrington from further participation after they refused to accept Britain's blueprint for an independence constitution. Salisbury Prime Minister Bishop Abel Muzorewa accepted Oct. 5.

The guerrillas said they could not accept the draft constitution without further "clarification" on the way compensation would be paid.

Another likely source of friction is Britain's plan for the six-month transitional period leading to new elections and Zimbabwe Rhodesia's independence.

Lord Carrington's proposals, providing for a British governor to be sent to the territory, supported by a limited number of military and police advisers, to supervise elections, was reported in sharp conflict with the guerrillas' plans for ending the war.

The Patriotic Front, led by Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, wants the guerrillas to have a dominant political and military role during a six-month transition period leading to new elections and legal independence.

The British plan apparently gives the guerrillas little if any influence in this period, leaving the current white-controlled armed forces and ministries intact in a transition.

350 admitted

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysia has admitted about 350 Vietnamese boat people into refugee camps this month, refugee officials said Wednesday.

United lays off pilots, trainees

CHICAGO (UPI) — United Airlines has announced the layoffs of 100 pilots and 95 pilot trainees because of higher fuel costs and anticipated lower traffic during the recession.

An airline spokesman said the furlough of the 95 pilots in training became effective Wednesday and the 100 pilots will be laid off Dec. 1.

The furloughs are the result of reduced flying planned for the rest of the year and next year because of higher fuel costs and expected lower traffic during the recession, the company said.

United said about 50 more pilots also could be furloughed once the airline has "fully analyzed" its schedule for next year.

United has about 5,800 pilots.

Decisions on the extent of reductions in other employee categories have not yet been made, the airline said.

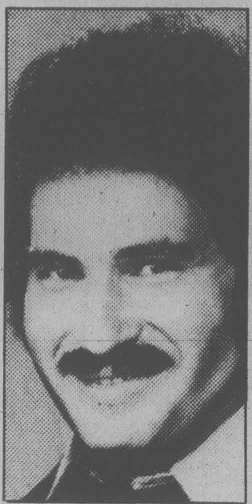
Nearly 15 months after the birth of their daughter, the parents of Louise Brown say they've had it with people referring to her as a "test tube baby." Among other things, said Louise's mother, Lesley, the term is inaccurate since "the egg was fertilized in a shallow dish, and then she was implanted back into me and I carried her for nine months, just as with any other baby."

After the weekend, Pierre Elliott Trudeau returned to his duties as opposition leader in Canada's House of Commons wearing dark glasses. Close inspection showed the former prime minister had a black eye. Trudeau was hit in the eye by a flying chip while he was chopping firewood. Incidentally, today is Trudeau's 60th birthday.



Kaplan

It's becoming apparent that if Gabe Kaplan, the comedian, ever leaves show business, he can fall back on gambling to earn a lining. Last August, Kaplan challenged Hal Fowler, the 1979 world poker champion, to a $200,000 winner-take-all game. Kaplan took all then, and now he's done it again, with the "donor" being Bobby Baldwin, the 1978 poker champion.

Louise Kroepfl, who carried her 4-year-old daughter to safety in the second to last lifeboat launched from the sinking U.S.S. Titanic, died in Milwaukee. She was 93. About 1,500 to 1,600 other passengers and crew members died that night on the Atlantic 67 years ago. Mrs. Kroepfl was 26 at the time.

A Dutch historian says Queen Juliana of the Netherlands had an illegitimate half-brother. Lou de Jong, former director of the government-backed War Documentation Institute, said in a book that in the 1920s, Queen Juliana's German-born father, Prince Hendrik, had a child, Henry, by an unknown woman referred to as Elisabeth le Roi. De Jong said Queen Juliana's mother, Queen Wilhelmina, had considered divorcing her husband at the time but decided to avoid bringing shame to the Dutch royal family.

Paul Martin, leaving London at the end of this month to retire after five years as Canadian High Commissioner to the Court of St. James, went off to Bùckinham Palace today to see The Queen as a high point to farewells for the 76-year-old former politician and diplomat.

Dear Abby:
Here's a neat one for you. Mom was widowed many years ago and has since built herself a very successful career as a realtor. She's 60, slim and attractive, but she's allowed her business to usurp her social life.

Recently, in showing a property, she met a widower her age who lives just a few blocks from her. He's tall, good-looking, gray-haired and well-dressed.

Well, this gentleman has geen giving Mom a big rush and providing her with lots of fun and laughter. Recently he sent Mom a semi-serious invitation in the mail inviting her to 'spend several naughty days with me at one of California's most romantic spots — Carmel.'

I said, 'Mom, get with it and go!'

Mom said, 'No way; it's just not my lifestyle.'

Today's Daughter

Dear Daughter:
Don't try to redesign Mom in your image. It's not easy for some people to 'get with it' when they've gotten along nicely without it for years.

Dear Friend:
I've been a faithful reader for many years. The few times I disagreed with you, you subsequently printed a retraction or, at least, admitted the opposition had a good case. In this instance, I don't think you will, but I had to write anyway.

I refer to your attitude about a citizen's right to have a gun in his home. I'll admit some folks are not well-advised to defend themselves against an armed intruder (children, those unfamiliar with weapons, and the senile). All others have a duty to resist evil.

If a burglar should call on me, he would find though I can't consistently shoot out the 'O' ring at 62, I could probably wear my armed forces marksmanship medals to his funeral, incidentally saving the taxpayer a bundle, too.

In any case, you've helped a lot of people and I still love you, even though I'll bet you won't print this.

Bob Stickler

Dear Bob:
You lose. P.S. Accede to the federal requirements of gun registration and you can have an arsenal if it makes you feel any more 'American' — or secure.

Dear Abby:
I'm planning my wedding and want to provide a nursery where the guests can leave all children under 4.

Would it be proper to include a note with my wedding invitations notifying the guests that such a nursery is available for all children under 4?

Bride-to-Be

Dear Bride:

Saddest lesson taken to school

Tear-streaked elementary school students listened quietly in Calgary this week as Myrna Clarke told them how her five-year-old son, Sean, died in a traffic accident.

Mrs. Clarke is determined that her son, who was buried Tuesday, won't become just another traffic statistic, says a Canadian Press report out of that Alberta city.

She told three classes at a Calgary public school Monday how Sean was killed last Friday when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car in southwest Calgary.

But he couldn't stop the bike and rode out in front of a car.

"A man came up the hill. He didn't have enough time to stop," she told the students as tears rolled down their faces.

"So Shaunny isn't going to be with us any more. I wanted you to hear it from me, because I love you.

"And I want you to know the safety rules because I couldn't stand to see something happen to any of you."

Mrs. Clarke and her husband, Patrick, 39, said they wanted more than anything else to save other parents the grief they are going through now.

Clarke said his first reaction was "complete hysteria."

"It's like someone blew you away with a shotgun."

Now, he said, "we all see the spaces" in their house where they were used to seeing Sean.

"It's like looking at a silhouette but there is nothing in it anymore."

Sean's two brothers have made some statements of remorse but seem to be weathering the loss well, Clarke said.

In British Columbia, children are killed in traffic accidents at the rate of one per week — while seven are injured every day, according to statistics released this week from a survey commissioned by ICBC and the B.C. Year of the Child and Family and carried out by the motor vehicles branch.

Commenting on the tragedy of the Clarke family, a Victoria City Police spokesman said he hopes there is never a need for parents here to turn their grief to an awareness campaign.

"Our statistics for traffic fatalities among schoolchildren are down in comparison to most other cities — and we'd like to keep it this way," said Cst. Wayne Coleman of the traffic safety division. "If we can keep any parent out of our schools on this sort of a mission, we will."

Coleman said road safety for children is a constant priority with the Victoria department, with Cst. Reg Knight singled out as the member at the head of the safety drive.

"I was out working school zones the other day and one little kid came up to me and said 'Are you one of Constable Knight's men?'" said Coleman, who added that there is a great deal of trauma even for survivors of traffic mishaps.

"It's one thing to say you've been in an accident but what does it do to you when you say you've run down a five-year-old?" he said.

Coleman said particular attention is paid to patrolling school zones for the 20 km/h speed maximum with the radar gun proving "quite effective."

Knight goes from school to school explaining street safety to young audiences such as those Mrs. Clarke spoke to in Calgary.

There have been no serious accidents involving children this school year, said Coleman. Last year, however, a James Bay youngster died following a mishap on Superior St.

And with shorter days, fog, rain and soon Halloween upon us, motorists and kids alike are warned to watch out for each other with renewed care.

"No matter how often parents and teachers tell children to be alert when crossing roads, a child will often forget or ignore the advice and concentrate on more interesting things — candy and pals," says the Halloween safety bulletin put out this week by the BCAA. The auto club advised children to make themselves visible, pause when crossing streets and wear makeup instead of masks.

Drivers are urged to use slower speeds, thorough visual checks and clean windshields.

Ankle ulcer due to lack of oxygen

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

My father has been confined to bed since he had a stroke eight months ago. Recently, he developed an ulcer around the ankle which refuses to heal, even though every kind of medicine has been applied to it. I am hoping that you have come across something, in North America or in Europe, that would be more helpful than the drugs we are now using.

Mrs. D.C.

Dear Mrs. C.:
The story of the stroke and the ucler of the foot points to the fact that your father probably has a degree of arteriosclerosis. Usually, such a disease of the arteries interferes with the proper supply of blood and oxygen to the area of the ulcer and prevents it from healing.

Many years ago, this presented a far more difficult problem than it does today. There are many ways by which the blood supply can be increased. Compression boots, drugs, and surgical by-pass operations have been remarkably effective in some cases that have failed to respond.

Recently, prostaglandins have been found to be extremely effective in curing difficult cases of ulcers of the extremities due to arterial disease. Prostaglandins are a very interesting group of fatty acids which have already proven themselves to be amazing in many fields of medicine.

There are various forms of prostaglandins. One, prostacyclin, has been found to be particularly valuable in the rapid healing of ulcers of the legs and feet. Many people who are threatened by the possible catastrophe of gangrene have been spared amputations by the use of prostacyclin.

Dear Doctor:
I've had a cold without interruption for five months. I was out of the country when this happened. Could I have picked up a virus and kept it in my system for this length of time?

Mrs. G.L.L.

Dear Mrs. L.:
It is difficult for me to believe that a virus infection could persist that long without progressing or disappearing. It is so easy to consider a virus the cause of any medical condition that is not quickly apparent. The likelihood is greater that you are suffering from some form of allergy which may, or may not, be complicated by a low-grade infection.

Blood studies can clearly differentiate infections from allergic responses. Nasal smears, when examined under a microscope, may reveal certain specialized cells, eosinophiles, which are characteristic of allergy.

Instead of assuming that your annoying condition is due to a virus, track down the basic cause, with the co-operation of your doctor.

This decade has witnessed a very strong trend toward natural products. Health food stores, their shelves brimming with unprocessed foods, have become permanent fixtures in many communities.

The trend toward natural foods has paralleled a similar trend toward natural personal products — more specifically, herbal products. Herbal shampoos, soaps and medicines have gained considerable popularity in recent years. Among the herbal medicines to benefit from this surge in popularity, are natural laxatives.

Innerclean is a herbal laxative in powdered form that is to be used in case of occasional constipation. It can be taken with water or sprinkled on fruits and vegetables. There are no chemicals or synthetic materials of any kind in Innerclean — just a unique blend of five different herbs.

You can receive a free sample packet of Innerclean Herbal Laxative, by writing to Lambda Inc., Dept. ML, 721 Sheridan Avenue, Cody, Wyoming, 82414 U.S.A.

Baked goods are among the products that make use of food additives. Calcium, iron and certain "B" vitamins are added to bread and rolls to enhance their nutritional values.

In order to prevent the formation of mold, sodium diacetate and calcium propionate are often employed in baked foods. Without these two agents, many items would have to be eaten the same day they are baked. In many cases, this would not allow for the transportaion of bread, cakes and pies to retail outlets.

Since food must look good in order to taste good, coloring agents such as annato and carotene are somtimes added for the appetizing effect that they provide. Wheat flour, for example, owes its white "supermarket" color to special bleaching agents that are used in its processing.

If you'd like to get a better perspctive on the use of certain food additives, write to the Information Services, Bakery Council of Canada, Box 61, Toronto Dominion Centre, Toronto, Ontario, M5K 1G5. Ask for their free folder entitled, Subtracting Additives — What Are the Benefits?

With daily threats of increased oil prices, chainsaws fill more fireplaces

Chainsaw injuries up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The switch to firewood as an alternative to high-priced heating oil is causing something of a boom in the chain saw industry but is aiding a parallel surge in chain saw-related accidents.

As more and more amateurs take to the forests in search of wood, hospital emergency rooms are having to cope with increasing injuries due to chain saw accidents, the American College of Surgeons reports.

Writing in the October issue of the Bulletin of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Loring Pratt reported on the findings of a recent study of 955 chain saw injuries.

Between 1973 and 1978, 92 percent of the accidents involved either arms or legs or both. Fifty percent involved the hands alone, Pratt wrote.

The problem has increased dramatically in recent years, largely because private operators of the equipment are either ignorant or careless about its use.

Pratt, working out of the Mid-Maine Medical Center in Waterville, Maine, said in 1973 there were an estimated 19,590 chain saw injuries nationwide reported to emergency rooms. By comparison, the figure had risen to 29,000 in 1976, and last year it hit 51,676.

Pratt said chain saws are "relatively safe to use," but proper precautions must be taken.

MANILA(UPI) — American and Soviet spacemen agreed that prolonged stay in outer space does not impair a man's sexual capability.

"So far as we can tell, the effect of weightlessness on the reproductive system is absolutely nil," U.S. Astronaut William E. Thornton told the International Congress of Aviation and Space Medicine.

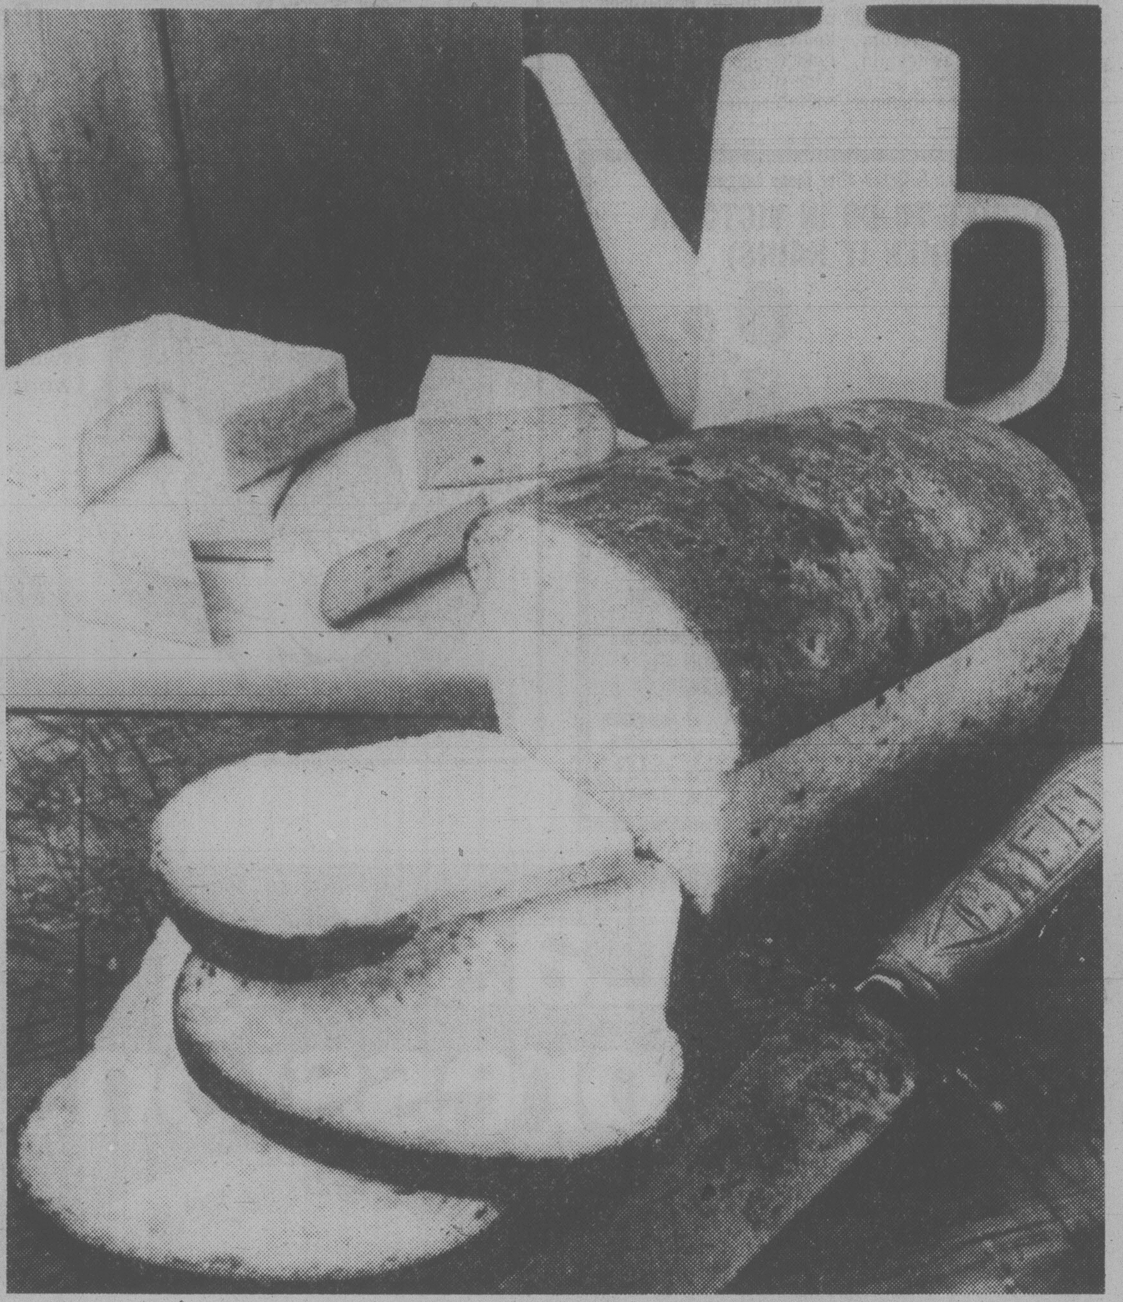
Bouncing bread bad for dieting?

By JEAN MAYER



Bread . . . often dropped when new diet starts

Ask people what food they would immediately drop on a diet, and chances are that many would mention bread.

It will come as a surprise to them that Dr. Olaf Mickelsen and his colleagues at Michigan State University have just completed a study that shows that bread can actually help in losing weight.

Dr. Mickelsen's diet study involved 16 overweight young college men who wanted to lose up to 26 pounds (11.79 kg). The students agreed to take all their meals in a cafeteria for eight weeks; to avoid alcoholic beverages, and to eat 12 slices of bread each day.

Without their knowledge, they were divided into two groups. One group was given regular enriched white bread, the other a specially-formulated 'reduced-calorie' bread containing a substantial amount of cellulose fiber, which is not readily absorbed by the body.

Each day, they were given menus that contained a nutritious variety of foods and provided 3,200 calories a day -- equal to the average number they had been consuming before the study began. They were also allowed to snack between meals, but were obliged to keep a careful record of what they ate. To determine how many calories they consumed at each meal, the scientists weighed the foods before putting them on the students' trays, and then weighed the leftovers. This enabled them to keep an accurate record of each subject's total calorie intake. The young men were weighed weekly, and three times during the study their health and nutritional status was assessed through blood samples and urine and stool analyses.

How did the study turn out? At the very beginning all the students limited their food intake, and throughout the study everybody lost weight. The group eating regular bread got an average 2,350 calories a day. The group eating the reduced-calorie bread got only 1,975, or 375 fewer, with the same level of physical activity. At the end of the eight-week period the regular-bread group had lost an average of 14 pounds (6.35), while the reduced-calorie bread group dropped an average of 19 pounds (8.62 kg).

Some of this difference in calorie intake could be accounted for by the fact that the reduced-calorie bread had 18 fewer calories per slice because of its cellulose content, but that still left about 155 calories a day that were due to a reduced intake of other foods.

Mickelsen and his co-workers suggest that bread with a meal helps a dieter to achieve a feeling of bulk and fullness before he has had time to eat his usual amount of food. They also believe that the high-fiber bread may have been more helpful in this regard, since cellulose absorbs a great deal of water, and thus would increase the feeling of bulk in the stomach.

At the beginning of the study both groups reported hunger pangs, which gradually lessened as the study went on. At the end, the group eating the reduced-calorie bread said they were not hungry at any time.

At the end of the study, five of the students kept on eating bread and maintained their weight loss or lost even more. Four who did not continue to eat much bread returned to their pre-experiment weight.

Of course, bread is no magic potion. But we hope this study will help to allay the fear that just looking at a slice of bread, let alone eating it, will add a few ounces of fat.

Drug quirks hurt elders

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — A drug education program is needed to protect the elderly, who often suffer side effects from medication, says a study sponsored by the Senior Citizens Resource Centre here.

The study, which received some funding from the federal health and welfare department, also says the amount of drugs senior citizens are taking in their own homes should be a cause of concern.

Sydney researchers Jane MacKinnon and Connie MacPherson gathered information for the study by interviewing more than 100 senior citizens in the area and sending another 100 questionnaires to senior citizens homes.

"Multiple drug use, drug interactions and reactions to improper use of medication may not only impair the health of the senior citizens but may lead to confusion, drowsiness and impairment of social functioning," the report says.

"Several respondents did not think these symptoms were unnatural, or did not want to bother the doctor with them. Many considered such symptoms to be a natural aspect of growing old when, in fact, they are side effects of many widely prescribed drugs."

But the study notes that it is not only prescribed drugs that bring on the symptoms. It cites over-the-counter drugs, alcohol, nicotine and caffeine.

Improper nutrition can compound the problem.

"People don't seem to recognize that aspirin, laxatives and the like which they can pick off a shelf, are in fact drugs," the report says. "Mixed with prescription drugs they may cause harmful and dangerous side effects."

It says the problem arises because the elderly are not consulting their doctors when purchasing over-the-counter drugs. Many were not aware of the dangers of interactions between their medication and alcohol or foods.

The study found that 22 per cent of over-the-counter drug sales to the elderly were laxatives. Doctors believe good nutrition could do the same job.

Wine nutrition outlined

dr. elizabeth bright-see and jane hope

There are more reasons to drink wine other than just following the old adage "A day without wine is like a day without sunshine", according to studies conducted recently at the University of California.

From a nutrition viewpoint, alcoholic beverages are classed as foods because they provide energy. Beer and wine contribute a few other nutrients as well, but in tiny quantities. Most vitamins in grapes are lost during the wine-making process but a few minerals are left. Wine contains some iron in a form which can be readily absorbed. This iron content has long been recognized — our grandparents served port to children if they thought they looked pale! But red and white wines contain more iron than port! While the amount of iron in two servings of red table wine isn't enough to be effective in the treatment of iron-deficiency anemia, eight ounces nevertheless provides about 20 percent of the recommended daily allowance for an average male. (Not that we're saying you should drink wine to get that necessary nutrient!)

A recent article in "Nutrition Today" outlined a study of several California wines. It reported that the potassium content of some wine was considerable — about three milligrams in a litre of red wine. They also found that straight alcohol, specifically gin, vodka and whiskey, consumed on an empty tummy produced the sharpest rises and highest peaks of alcohol levels in the blood. Sherry and vermouth were the next culprits while wine and beer had the lowest effects and were absorbed much more slowly into the bloodstream.

We're not going to discuss the effects of alcohol in nutrition today. That's an important topic we'll reserve for a future column. Nor do we intend to add to thousands of tales that give magical medical powers to wine! But, wine apparently has an antibiotic property. In fact, two Canadian doctors proved that certain viruses can be inactivated by wine (however, plain grape juice does the same thing!) This disease-curing property of grapes hasn't been tested on humans yet.

Perhaps the best news is the research now going on regarding the relationship of wine to arteriosclerotic heart disease. There's some evidence that the incidence of the disease is lower in cultures where wine is drunk regularly with meals! It's also a fact that moderate amounts of alcohol relieves tension (be cautious — it works in the opposite way though — large amounts increase stress). The alcohol in wine is absorbed a lot more slowly than straight alcohol and, therefore, is a slower-acting "tranquilizer".

It's been said that wine promotes longevity. It appears that the mortality rate of moderate drinkers of wine is lower than that of abstainers. Geriatric patients for years have often been given moderate amounts of very mild alcoholic beverages. Some chronic care centres have "pubs" where wine and beer are served and there's been beneficial physical and psychological effect for patients — in just getting together with friends in a congenial setting.

Wine was also used in ancient times as an appetite stimulant — it was thought that wine had some ingredients (acetic, tartaric and tannic acid) that made you feel hungry. Perhaps it's more psychological — we usually think of wine in association with good food.

A study was conducted in California to see if wine actually assisted in the absorption of ntrients. In order to determine this, six healthy young male students (all "social drinkers") volunteered for a 75-day experiment: They were placed on a controlled, nutritionally adequate diet and over four 18-day experimental periods, they were given, at random, one of four test beverages — a California wine, an alcohol solution, a de-alcoholized wine and finally water. It was discovered calcium, phosphorous, magnesium, zinc and iron were better absorbed when the students were on the "regular" and de-alcholized wine! This could be du to the acidic properties of wine, but more research is needed.

Wine, in moderation, could be a great panacea. With drugs and hospitalization costs skyrocketing, a glass of wine might help speed a patient's recovery. We even know of one hospital in Portland, Oregon that has its own wine steward — a physician. An interesting thought!

Psychic scars weighed

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons says doctors are becoming more conscious of the need to turn down patients requesting surgery if they are likely to have trouble adjusting to its effects.

Dr. Verner Lindgren, in Toronto for the society's six-day conference, which starts said a patient's state of mind before and after a cosmetic or reconstructive operation is a vital concern of the plastic surgeon.

Lindgren, of Portland, Ore., cited the case of a woman in her late 60s who complained to him that a facelift hadn't changed her appearance at all.

For such cases, Lindgren always takes pictures of patients before surgery. When the woman was shown a pre-operative picture, she told him: "I never looked like that."

"Too many patients hear what they want to hear," he said. "They're so keyed up about having something done."

Lindgren said he also insists that patients receive at least six months of post-operative care.

Plastic surgeons are doing more cosmetic surgery than ever, Lindgren said. He said most plastic surgeons find that facelifts and nose jobs pay their expenses while they look forward to the challenge of rarer operations, such as those on burns or breasts.

Rate hikes not all bad

OTTAWA (CP) — The story no one seems to be telling in the latest outbreak of apprehension and anger over rising interest rates is that the average person could come out ahead.

Figures available from the Canadian Bankers' Association show that as of April 30, the average bank account in this country contained $2,230.

The holder of such an account could expect to make $211.85 in annual interest three months ago. (As of July 25, the interest rate on non-chequing savings accounts was 9.5 per cent).

Nov. 1, when the rate rises to 11 per cent, that same bank account will yield $245.30 a year.

A difference of $33.45 doesn't sound like much. But multiplied by the 25 million savings accounts it amounts to more than $836 million.

Although this is the aspect of the interest-rate issue which has brought the government and the Bank of Canada under heated criticism in the last couple of weeks, neither bankers nor government officials can say with assurance how much an interest-rate increase costs the nation.

End to interest rate hikes seen

By AL FORREST

The upward surge of interest rates is about over, says Richard Thompson of Vancouver, past chairman of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

"There may be one more upward move but that's all."

Thompson, who is western chairman for the annual Canada Savings Bond campaign, said the high interest rates have had an unsettling effect for Canada but the economy remains basically strong, especially in B.C. and Alberta.

He said the Bank of Canada, which he represents in the annual bond drive, is studying its CSB interest rate of 10.25 per cent to see if it is high enough.

"Few people would be surprised if the rate went up. The 10.25 rate is fairly competitive but there hasn't been any big rush to buy."

The key will be how much money Ottawa hopes to raise this year, he said. If the rate is not increased, it will be a sign the Bank of Canada does not expect to raise large amounts through CSBs in 1979.

The problem, he said, is the necessity to pay bonuses to those already holding bonds, to discourage them from cashing them in.

An increase of a quarter of a point in the interest rate could result in identical bonuses being paid to Canadians holding $18 billion in CSBs that have not yet matured. This would cost the Bank of Canada more than $45 million.

A half-point increase would cost almost $100 million and the Bank of Canada would have to take a close look at that expense before deciding to raise the rate.

A normal target is for about $1 billion in bond sales but far less will be sold this year at the current rate of interest, he said.

The CSB sale can end any time after Nov. 9 by government order. Normally the sale continues until mid-November but there is no guarantee it will.

Meanwhile, all holders of CSBs are guaranteed an effective interest rate of at least 10.25 per cent (and in some cases 10.5 per cent) from now until the bonds mature.

Thompson said the bonus payment should be picked up as soon as possible because the bonus itself does not collect interest and the money is lying idle.

The bonus payments, for each $100 of Canada Savings Bonds:

Series 22: Issued in 1967 at six per cent interest, the bond matures on Nov. 1, 1980. On or after Nov. 1 of this year the bond-holder collects a cash bonus of $32.50 (for each $100 of bonds) and on the date of maturity, Nov. 1, 1980, a further bonus of $4.50. Effective interest rate is 10.5 per cent.

Effective rate 10.5 per cent.

Series 25: Issued 1970 at eight per cent, maturing in 1981. Bonus payment $16.75 on Nov. 1, $5.50 at maturity. Effective rate 10.5 per cent.

Series 26: Issued 1971 at 7.75 per cent, maturing in 1980. Bonus payment $19.75 on Nov. 1, $2.75 at maturity. Effective rate 10.5 per cent.

Series 27: Issued 1972 at 7.75 per cent, maturing in 1984. Bonus payment $20.25 on Nov. 1, $17 at maturity. Effective rate 10.5 per cent.

Series 28: Issued 1973 at 7.5 per cent, maturing in 1985. Bonus payment $20.50 on Nov. 1, $21.50 at maturity. Effective rate 10.5 per cent.

Series 29: Issued 1974 at 9.75 per cent, maturing in 1983. No bonus payment this year but bonus of $2.50 at maturity. Effective rate 10.25 per cent.

Series 30: Issued 1975 at 9.5 per cent, maturing in 1984. No bonus payment this year but bonus of $4.75 at maturity. Effective rate 10.25 per cent.

Series 31: Issued 1976 at 9.25 per cent, maturing in 1985. No bonus payment this year but bonus of $8 at maturity. Effective rate 10.25 per cent.

Series 32 and 33 issued in 1977 and 1978 respectively each went out at 10.25 per cent and do no carry a bonus.

The cash bonus collected in November can be handled in one of four ways for tax purposes: income for 1979, income for 1980, capital gain for 1979, capital gain for 1980. The best choice would depend upon the individual's tax situation, Thompson said.

Boy's death now in hands of jury

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The jury isn't expected to bring down its verdict until Friday on the death of an infant boy who died in Victoria General Hospital Sept. 19, 1978, 10 hours after being born to a 33-year-old, mentally retarded woman.

More than 250,000 words of testimony were given over an eight-day period.

Fifteen witnesses, including two experts, were called and examined by B.C.'s chief coroner Dr. William McArthur and six lawyers representing various parties in the case.

McArthur estimates the total cost of the hearing could be as much as $100,000.

The primary issue in the case is not so much the death of the infant but whether doctors should have gone ahead with the operation to remove the fetus when they did.

Doctors at Glendale Lodge, where the woman is a patient, didn't detect her pregnancy until the 20th week of the baby's gestation and the infant was delivered by caesarean section three weeks later.

"The expenditure of human effort in this case is enormous," McArthur said in his charge to the jury late Wednesday afternoon.

"It could rarely be done again. You (the jury) have been exposed to a breadth of thinking on these issues that is uncommon. You have a very special role to play.

"While your findings will deal with the death of a baby it is blindingly clear your recommendations have the potential to go to the roots of society."

McArthur called on the three women and two men on the jury to develop practical and sensible findings and recommendations that are reasonable to expect and implement.

He noted the laws on termination of pregnancies and guidelines that doctors follow are vague and uncertain and offered the jury the opportunity to recommend changes.

"We've been wandering around in a semantic, legal and medical jungle this past two weeks — a jungle which doesn't have many paths" he said.

Because of the complexities of the case, he adjourned the inquest to 10 a.m. Friday to give the jury a full day to consider its verdict.

He also invited the jury to consider returning in six month's time to find out what action, if any, has been taken on their recommendations.

In his final summation to the jury, lawyer Chris Randall, representing the Public Trustee in the interests of the dead baby, said the critical aspect of the case was the timing of the operation.

He noted that if the pregnancy had been allowed to continue the chances of the baby's surviving would have increased. On the other hand, he said, doctors felt continuation of the pregnancy would constitute a threat to the health and wellbeing of the mother.

He noted that on the basis of evidence given Tuesday by Hubert Hayes, administrator of Glendale, there was a complete lack of delegated authority in the province for the treatment and care of retarded persons like the woman in this case.

He said that while Glendale had no statutory or legal responsibility for the woman, the question of how the woman got pregnant remains unanswered.

He said the procedures for therapeutic abortions are seemingly based more on philosophical than strictly medical reasons. He felt committees deciding on abortions should include someone to speak for the fetus.

Allan Thackray, Vancouver lawyer representing Drs. Ken Martin and John Dickout of Glendale, Dr. Michael Penn, the retarded woman's family physician, Dr. Michael Rippington, the obstetrician who delivered the baby, and Dr. C.K. Chan, the pediatrician who cared for the baby after it was born, said the doctors had all tried consciously to do the right thing.

He said the retarded woman's mother had urged doctors to terminate the pregnancy in the interests of her daughter.

Thackray said Rippington at first felt the baby should go to term but then changed his mind and applied to the joint Victoria General-Royal Jubilee therapeutic abortion committee for an abortion.

He said Rippington had talked over the case with eight other doctors who all agreed the operation should be done for maternal reasons.

Five other doctors, including the three members of the abortion committee supported the action. In addition Dr. Donald Sringer, a Vancouver psychiatrist, called by McArthur as an expert witness, testified earlier Wednesday that in his opinion the continuation of the pregnancy would pose a severe threat to the woman's emotional and mental wellbeing.

Thackray said the onus was placed on Rippington to decide whether to terminate the pregnancy or not.

"Is it fair for one person to make such life and death decisions?" he asked.

He said he feels the laws on abortion are too vague to be meaningful and suggested that perhaps the section on abortions as it applies to therapeutic abortion committees should be removed from the Criminal Code.

Rodney Taylor, lawyer representing Victoria General, agreed there are problems with the committee.

"There's been some mention the committee operates as a rubber stamp," he said. "Unfortunately that is true."

He said the hospital board and doctors are concerned about the vagueness of the law.

Taylor said the cornerstone of the vagueness lies in the broad definition of what constitutes a matter concerning the health and well-being of the woman seeking an abortion.

He said that because of the inadequate definitions and guidelines and sheer number of requests for abortions, the committee ends up approving the majority of applications based only on the referring doctor's recommendations.

He said the hospital would like to see the law changed so that abortions of fetuses in their first 16 weeks of development would be left entirely to the patient and doctor.

The committee would then handle only cases where the foetus is in its 16th to 30th week of development.

Beyond 30 weeks it would be a matter between the patient and obstetrician.

Taylor noted that as the law now stands the committee and doctors are not required to consider the fetus, only the mother.

He appealed to the jury not to find fault "with those who, with great discomfort, have been trying to make the present system work."

Taylor said the great tragedy in the case was the failure of Glendale physicians to detect the pregnancy sooner.

That brought a response from Ken Murphy, lawyer representing Glendale, who said the doctors could not be faulted because the woman's menstrual patterns were very irregular and there had not ever been a case of a severely retarded woman getting pregnant at Glendale before.

Opening lead — five of hearts.

Let's say you're in four spades and West leads a heart. East cashes the A-K of hearts and returns the nine, West ruffing your ten and returning a low diamond. You go up with the ace and need the rest of the tricks to make the contract. At this point it seems that the outcome depends entirely on a successful club finesse.

However, there is a good rule to follow in situations of this sort. Let's assume for a moment there's a 50 per cent chance that East was dealt the king of clubs. Using this as a guidepost, your first obligation is to look for a method of play other than the club finesse that will raise your chances of success to perhaps 60, 70, or conceivably even 100 per cent.

In the present case, if you study the matter carefully, it becomes evident that you can raise your prospects substantially above 50 per cent by allowing for the possibility that West originally held only one or two trumps.

In line with this thought, after winning West's diamond shift at trick four, you play a low trump to your king and lead the queen of hearts. As it happens, West has no more trumps and this allows you to discard a club from dummy.

The rest of the play is easy enough. You cash the ace of clubs, ruff a club in dummy, then trump a diamond and ruff your last club in dummy to bring home the contract.

Note that if, when you lead the queen of hearts, West produces a trump — having been dealt three or more trumps — you overruff in dummy and still have the club finesse to fall back on. It doesn't cost you anything at all to play the hand this way.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, October 19
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Defer to judgment of one who is dedicated to you. Your own perception could be slightly off base — temporarily. Be aware of public needs, responses and legal ramifications. Cancer, Capricorn natives figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Leave fine points, details for another day. Study Aries message. Emphasis on pacing, dependents, nutrition, basic working conditions. Make inquiries, especially regarding travel or holiday plans. Perceive potential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Feelings, emotions vie to push logic aside. Accent on change, travel, creative endeavors. Strive to analyze, to detect trends and cycles. Important to be aware of details. What is of apparent minor consequence could develop into major policy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dig deep for information, obtain hint from Gemini message. Emphasis on basic issues, security, property appraisal. Member of opposite sex provides valuable information. You get news which aids in establishing "territorial rights."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Delay could be blessing in disguise; you need time to perfect techniques, to get second emotional wind. Accent on special payments, collections, royalties, plugging of legal loopholes. Define terms, steer clear of one who claims you can get something for nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Circumstances favor your efforts; money and emotional satisfaction ride with you. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure in scenario. Highlight direct contacts, greater independence, originality and willingness to pioneer a style.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be aggressive in battling deception, groundless fears and doubts. You gain access to confidential information. Broaden horizons; reach beyond current expectations. You're due to strike chord of universal appeal. Answer to "love" question is, "Yes!"

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtain valid hint by reading Scorpio message. Be open to new experiences, receptive to one who cares and proves it. You can win friends and influence people — do so in a confident manner. A wish will be fulfilled.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Consolidate recent gains. Business enterprise is due to pay dividends. Another Capricorn and a Cancer native figure in scenario. Build for future security. Prestige, honor, reputation might be put to test. The number 2 figures prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Travel, study, educational prospects come into sharp, clear focus. You perceive potential and gain rare insight into your own future. Be flexible, versatile and be receptive to social invitation. Gemini, Sagittarius natives figure in unusual scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Restrictions fall aside; you tie loose ends and remove financial roadblock. Cash flow resumes. Aquarius, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. Check fine print where leases, rentals, basic agreements are concerned. The number 4 could play an unusual role.

IF OCTOBER 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are independent, have "original touch" and opposite sex find you attractive. You are creative, stubborn, determined, at times domineering and very much concerned with justice. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. Travel indicated in November along with increased social activity and great opportunity to express views in meaningful, popular manner. New start made earlier this year will prove successful. Contact made in July could lead to long-standing relationship and perhaps money in the bank.

Before the judge

Rick Donald Davies, 22, and Susan Nancy Davies, 20, of 83-B Sims, are charged with two counts of possession of stolen jewelry alleged to be worth $15,280. The jewelry is said to be from Swedish Jewellers and Peoples Jewellers in Victoria, Deja Vu Jewellers in Surrey, and Birks in Calgary.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said police investigated a broken window complaint about 10:50 p.m. and found Baker in a group of three youths standing nearby.

Baker admitted breaking the window, telling officers he had been drinking and had an argument with his girlfriend before deciding to take out his frustrations on the window.

Court was informed Baker had convictions for theft, causing a disturbance, and breach of probation, the last one on March 30, 1978, when he was given seven days in jail.

Failing to report monthly to his probation officer netted a 10-day jail term for 32-year-old John Richard Horne who was convicted April 13, 1978, of possession of stolen property and given a 12-month jail sentence and two years probation.

★ ★ ★

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: James Murray Bryson, 23, of 940 Fullerton, $500; and Randolph Willard Thompson, 26, of Shawnigan Lake, $400.

Blackout break-in jails pair

Two men who broke into a drug store during a power blackout last Nov. 23 were sentenced in county court Wednesday to prison terms.

Brian George Angus, 32, and Stanley James Petne, 35, were found guilty last month by Judge Leslie Cashman of breaking and entering and theft of drugs at McGill and Orme, 30 West Burnside.

Cashman refused to suspend sentence as recommended by defence counsel Patrick Sweeney so the men could get treatment for drug and alcohol problems.

He sentenced Angus to two years less a day with the recommendation that he be released on a pass for treatment and Petne to one year with a recommendation that he be eligible for work release.

Sweeney had asked for three years' probation and an order to take treatment from the Alcohol and Drug Commission but Cashman said he had no intention of trying to break new ground.

PWA must pay for beagle boner

A Brentwood dog breeder was granted $2,183.60 in damages and costs Wednesday in a county court suit against Pacific Western Airlines which lost her prize beagle bitch five years ago.

Philippa Yates of Harborcrest Kennels sued the airline for negligence in the loss of four-year-old Tanya, which she had shipped to Seattle for breeding May 14, 1974. She was advised the dog was bred and was being returned collect May 20, but it never arrived in Victoria, court was told.

Inquiries were made without result and Yates said she went to Seattle to see if she could find the animal, which had been a champion at shows and could be worth $700-$1,000 as a breeder.

She learned the dog had escaped at the airport and about three days later was found dead, but no evidence of this was offered to the court.

The woman said she took Tanya to Patricia Bay airport in an airline-approved shipping cage and asked an attendant for some wire with which to secure the openings. He told her he had something better than that and taped the corners of the cage with what appeared to be paper or plastic adhesive tape.

When the attendant was filling out the shipping document, Yates said he entered $150 as the customs declared value, and told her, "nothing ever happens."

She said she took his advice not to insure the dog for its real value, which was subject to customs tariff because he could not tell her how much duty the receiver would have to pay. Not wanting to put a burden on the breeder in Seattle she accepted the $150 minimum valuation, she said.

Court was told the dog was the last of its bloodline of that known quality and could not be replaced although a similar animal of unproven calibre might have been worth about $300. Because she had been a winner and produced valuable pups, Tanya could have had up to $1,000 value, Yates said.

PWA counsel H. Barends of Vancouver admitted loss of the dog but only limited liability, under terms of the Warsaw Convention on international air carriage.

Compensation based on the international agreement would have had to be based on the weight of the item — dog and cage 40 pounds — and the value of the French gold franc in 1974, at the rate of 250 francs per kilogram.

After an adjournment counsel told the court they had agreed to $1,700 in compensation and $483.60 costs, and Judge M.L.T. Drake gave judgment for the plaintiff.

Extra show by Peking Opera

With the Nov. 13 single performance of the Peking Opera Theatre at the Royal close to a sell-out and four weeks still to go, a special 2 p.m. matinee has been arranged for the same day.

The matinee will offer a different program consisting of a full-length opera, The Story of the White Snake, an intensely dramatic and martial presentation.

On Oct.29, the McPherson Foundation has arranged a lecture to take place at Newcombe Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The subject will be An Introduction to Peking Opera and it will be given by Dr. Jan Walls, director of the Centre for Pacific and Oriental Studies at the University of Victoria. Dr. Walls will be assisted by his wife, Yvonne Li Walls.

Dr. Walls will show how the Chinese opera form, which is totally different to the occidental opera, reflects the development in historic evolution of Chinese popular theatre.

The city of Victoria's recreation department will act as host.

Another attraction will be an information night Wednesday at the Swan Lake Nature Centre from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m. and experts will be on hand to tell people all about mushrooms, the good and the bad.

On the same day and also on Thursday between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. at the Mayfair Mall, there will be free fitness testing for adults 19 and over.

At 3 p.m. Saturday, the Central Library lounge, 794 Yates, children will be entertained by magician John Christiansen.

Addicts still get help

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the Brannen Lake heroin treatment centre will continue to operate despite a court ruling that provincial involvement in narcotics treatment is unconstitutional.

McClelland said the centre will continue to accept voluntary admissions pending the outcome of a request to the federal government to assume total responsibility for heroin control measures and treatment.

He also said he has asked Ottawa to share the costs of B.C. treatment programs until arrangements are made for a switchover.

On Wednesday, Chief Justice Allan McEachern of the B.C. Supreme Court rejected a suggestion that the voluntary phase of the program could be carried out under provincial legislation which he declared invalid a week ago.

Boyd Ferris, counsel for the attorney-general, said he had been asked to appear before the chief justice for clarification of his reasons and to find out whether he accepted the attorney-general's argument that the Heroin Treatment Act provides for treatment of addicts who could be classed as volunteers.

He said a stay of the judgment, pending appeal, would enable the health department to continue treating more than 200 persons who are volunteer patients.

However, McEachern said he could find no non-compulsory feature of the act, which he found conflicted with federal jurisdiction by dealing primarily with criminal matters rather than health matters.

The judge suggested that such a program might be carried on by the alcohol and drug commission but there is also a question of whether this would fall within the authority of the legislature.

Timing thwarts thieves

A police spokesman said the officers were passing Island Color Labs, 1218 Langley, about 4:15 a.m. when they saw movement inside the premises.

No sooner had they pulled over to investigate than two persons shot out a back door and ran down a lane.

Immortal Combat!

Sounds like a subtitle for a Wagnerian opera. But it's the theme for a free concert being presented tonight at 8 at University Centre by the University Wind Symphony.

The symphony is a student ensemble under the direction of Jesse Read of the UVic music faculty. It will be joined for this occasion by the Canadian Forces Band from Naden, conducted by Capt. A. C. Furey.

The music will depict, rather than celebrate, battles. Included on the program is John Williams' Theme from Star Wars; The Battell, by William Byrd; Richard Rogers' Victory at Sea, and a piece written during the American Revolution of 1776.

THE NEW HONDA CIVIC.
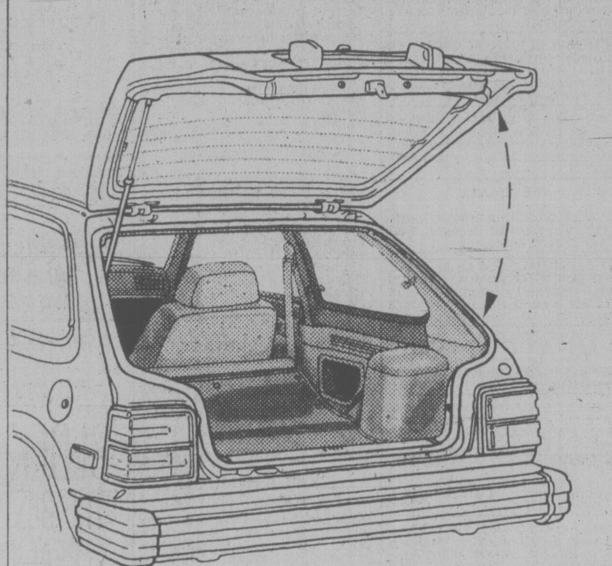
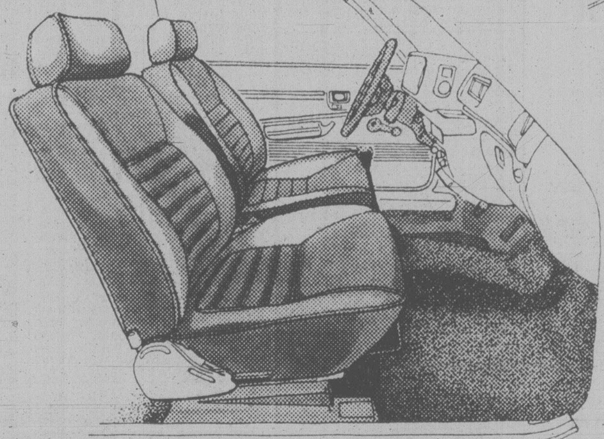
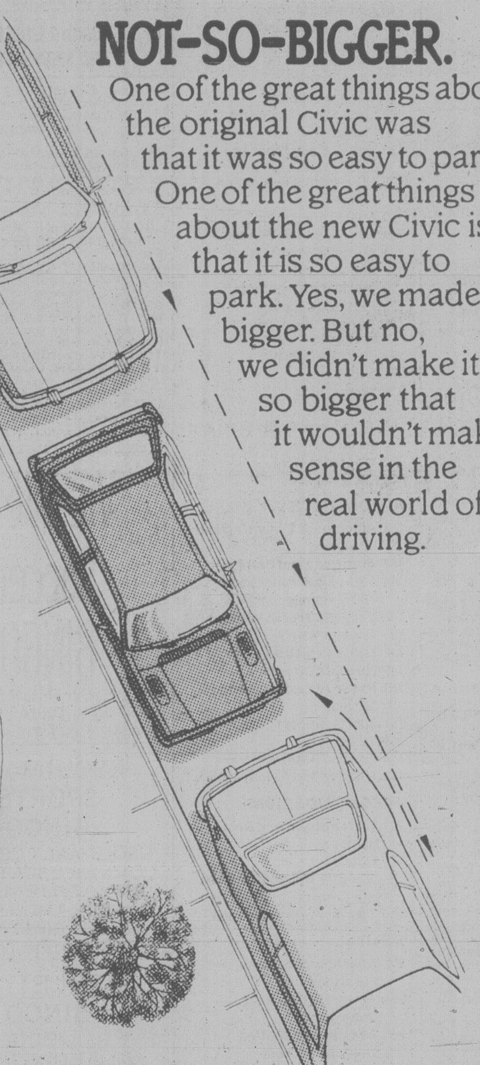
WHAT'S NOT-SO-BIGGER.



BIGGER. Look inside a new Honda Civic and you'll see that this year there is even more hip room, shoulder room and leg room in both the front and back seats. How do you prove it? By putting your hips, your legs, and your shoulders inside the car and seeing for yourself.

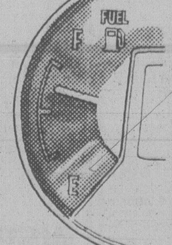


NOT-SO-BIGGER. One of the great things about the original Civic was that it was so easy to park. One of the great things about the new Civic is that it is so easy to park. Yes, we made it bigger. But no, we didn't make it so bigger that it wouldn't make sense in the real world of driving.



BIGGER. The hatchback that is standard on all Civics is bigger this year. It now opens right down to the rear bumper. Why did we make it bigger? Because we made the cargo area 14% bigger so you can get even bigger things in.

BIGGER. Usually when a car gets bigger, and the engine gets bigger, the mileage gets smaller. Not so with a new Civic. It's true that it got bigger, but it's also true that the mileage got bigger. And better. It gets a Transport Canada rating of 6.7 litres per 100 kms.* Which is 6.5% better than last year's Civic.



NOT-SO-BIGGER. Don't ask us how we did it, but we made the car bigger and the price smaller. This year's standard Honda Civic Hatchback actually costs less than the Civic Hatchback did a year ago.

THE LEGEND GETS BIGGER.

*These figures are estimates based on Transport Canada approved laboratory test methods. The actual mileage you get will vary according to your driving habits, your car's condition, optional equipment and driving conditions. These estimates do, however, provide a useful comparison guide for new car models. Model illustrated is the Civic Hatchback Deluxe.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Handicapped seek freedom

By
LORRAINE LOCHERTY

Dick and Carel Makovski were wed in a quiet civil ceremony four years ago. Before the marriage took place, the bride agreed to be sterilized.

Both are mentally handicapped.

Carel's father and doctor felt sterilization was the best thing to do under the circumstances.

"My doctor told me I'd be happier that way," said Carel, 39, who said she signed a paper consenting to the operation to please her father, who was apprehensive about the marriage.

"But he said he wouldn't stand in the way of my happiness."

After the marriage they had to move from Bevan Lodge in Courtenay to a Duncan group home. At that time it was the only facility on Vancouver Island that accepted married couples.

"We didn't mind, we were in love," said Dick.

The couple celebrated their fourth anniversary Tuesday. They are still in love.

"Getting married was the best thing that happened to use. We can't stand to be apart."

Now the most important thing in the world to them is moving into their own apartment and becoming self-sufficient.

"Sometime in our lives we'd like to be independent. It's hard to be independent in a group home," Dick said, his voice hardening with anger.

"If we're not ready now, when will we ever be," said Dick, who is 46 years old.

This week they attended a two-day conference at the Empress Hotel designed to help give them the confidence to start on the road to independence.

The 7th Annual Conference of the Mentally Handicapped Tuesday and Wednesday was attended by 165 mentally handicapped people from around Vancouver Island.

Conference co-ordinator Barbara Bates said the series of workshops, panel discussions, speeches and social events has a lasting effect on the lives of the mentally handicapped who attend each year.

"We believe over a long period of time it does make a difference in these peoples' lives," she said.

Unless declared incompetent, the mentally handicapped have all the rights of other Canadian citizens — they just don't know what they are or how to demand them, Bates said.

They spend so much of their lives in institutions they are used to being told what to do and when to do it.

Some mentally handicapped people have the same problems that frustrates Carel and Dick — the keen desire for independence but overwhelming feelings of frustration and inadequacy.

Money is also a major deterrent. They don't know, for example that the $40 a month they receive from provincial goverment as spending money while in a group home or institution would increase to $300 if they moved out.

Bates, a member of the Victoria Association for the Mentaly Handicapped, said its important to get handicapped people out of institutions and into situations were they have more contact with the community and the chance to lead fairly normal lives.

Many mentally handicapped people are lonely. "They attend workshops during the day and at night they vegitate or watch television all evening," Bates said.

Four group homes in the Greater Victoria area are full and there is a lengthy waiting list for entry.

Cutting the right canes

It would be a great help to many home gardeners if we could straighten out the pruning of June fruiting raspberries. There still seems to be some confusion as to the parts to remove and those to leave.

First, the newly purchased plants, bought this fall or early next spring, or the plants removed from the present planting and set into a new place in the garden.

Shortening of the canes is done to prevent fruit production next year and to encourage strong new growths that will fruit well the year after.

Next are the plants set out last fall which made strong growths this year but had no fruit. These growths will bear next year and should now have their tips cut back to a convenient height of around five feet from the ground.

Purchased plants may have the canes cut back to three feet in length, or to one foot. Home grown stock will have canes shortened to five or six feet in length.

If the growths have not reached five feet in length, only the top few inches should be removed. This "tipping" is done to encourage the formation of side growths next spring. They will bear the berries. The more side growths the larger the crop.

Finally, the established plants which have been bearing for one to 10 years, or more. These plants have two kinds of canes, those which bore fruit last June and new canes which will produce next year's crop.

The canes which fruited are cut out one inch below soil level so as not to leave a hollow stem above soil for pests to enter. The new growths are reduced in number to about five or six canes to a root, keeping the strongest and removing all others one inch below soil level.

The new growths which are kept are then "tipped" back to a convenient height. This reducing of length should be done before the November gales whip the long canes and cause root loosening and subsequent damage.

Everbearing varieties which fruit in late August to early September are treated the same way.

Since raspberries are surface rooting no digging should be done close to the roots nor between the plants.

Bonemeal may be scattered over the root area now and covered with a two-inch layer of compost or old cow or horse manure; not fresh manure, nor chicken manure.

Raspberry fruits ripen when the air temperature is suitably warm, usually under the protection of the leaves. They do not need a full day of sunshine so can be planted where shaded for part of the day.

Drainage is the most important requirement. Water around the roots over winter and in spring causes the new canes to wilt just as the berries are starting to ripen.

Check shows CRD is legal

The Capital Regional Board was told Wednesday it still has the power to administer subdivision and zoning regulations in unorganized areas of the regional district.

The board sought the legal opinion from Douglas Patterson after Christina Rainey, spokesman for the East Highland District Association, questioned the board's authority to deal with such matters.

She said four of the six regulations in effect when the provincial government established the CRD were rescinded in an effort by the government to clear unnecessary legislation from the books.

Rainey questioned whether the region still has the authority in such matters, saying the western community would be particularly affected.

But Patterson advised the board it still has the authority because the language of the rescinded regulations had been written into succeeding legislation.

Patterson said the ministry of municipal affairs had confirmed this.

Rainey, a long-time opponent of the CRD's 45-acre freeze in the Highlands, will run for the office of Langford regional director in the Nov. 17 election.

She's the first announced regional director candidate.

Rainey says the main issues are a lack of efficient public transportation, escalating taxes and the need for a review and restructuring of the assessment of property taxes.

She also advocates a freeze on all sewer outfalls and encouragement of non-polluting secondary industry.

CRD board slams 'inadequate' ministry proposal

A municipal affairs ministry discussion paper which proposes replacing regional districts with smaller county councils drew sharp criticism at a special meeting of the Capital Regional District board Wednesday.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said: "I've never seen such an inadequate job done by a government agency."

Saanich Ald. Howard Sturrock said the paper's proposal to initiate an appeal system is a bad one.

"I for one object to the notion that there should be an appeal against land decisions made by the local area and affecting the local area," he said.

Outer Gulf Islands director Jim Campbell and Salt Spring Island director Mike Clement contended the recommedations made by the provincially appointed Regional District Review Committee after receiving 366 briefs and holding four dozen hearings, appear to have been discarded by the ministry.

Central Saanich Ald. Dave Hill said he is bothered that the paper gives no clear definitions of regional districts' authority.

He said he and his council would like to see such authority limited to regional planning, hospitals and public health, solid waste disposal, trunk sewers and regional parks.

150 long-term care beds sought

The Capital Regional District soon may have an additional 150 long-term care beds.

Assistant hospital planner Bill Pennington told the regional hospital and health planning commission Wednesday night the Oak Bay Lodge — formerly Oak Bay Manor — has applied for permission to expand to 300 long-term care beds.

The beds are desperately needed in the regional district. About 200 long-term care patients are occupying acute-care beds in general hospitals, making it difficult for the hospitals to provide acute care.

Board eyes takeover of economic planning

The Capital Regional District board will consider taking on an economic development function including the hiring of an economic development officer.

But the bid could be doomed to failure.

In spite of a staff recommendation and a warning from Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier that such a move is essential, the economic development committee ruled Wednesday the matter will be discussed by the full board without any recommendation from the committee.

The Greater Victoria Economic Development Commission has carried out the function since 1977, being financed by the core municipalities and the provincial government.

But commissioner Barry Mayhew has resigned and provincial government funding beyond November is in doubt.

In his report, acting director of regional planning Charles Wakelin said letters patent would not have to be amended if the function is simply added to the department's responsibilities.

He noted that Oak Bay, Sidney and Central Saanich councils are against the regional district taking on the new role.

Couvelier admitted it would be a politically risky move, adding he is as loath as anyone to see the regional district empire grow.

He argued, however, that by making it a regional district function it would be cheaper, benefit the whole region and be more efficient.

Other directors said such a move would be tantamount to sneaking it through the back door, although they agreed the function is logically a regional one.

Sewage idea dumped

Capital Regional District politicians refused Wednesday to back regional health officer Dr. Allen Arneil's efforts to crack down on waterfront property owners who dump raw sewage into the sea.

Arneil failed in a bid to get the community health and social services committee to endorse a policy which would force homeowners to extend outfalls to below the low-water mark and install septic tanks.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said such a crackdown could cause severe financial hardship to some home-owners, particularly in his municipality.

Couvelier said he had read that oceans may be deprived of important nutrients through treatment of residential and industrial waste.

Arneil said he was asking for endorsement of the new policy because "it's a change from doing nothing as we've been doing up until now."

After directors refused to endorse the policy, Arneil asked whether this meant directors didn't want him to clamp down on polluters.

"We don't have to endorse it but we'll let you know if we don't like it," he told Arneil.

Prices climb to 6-month high

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Opposition MPs demanded the government abandon plans to increase the price of gas to a $1.30 a gallon after Statistics Canada today reported inflation climbed to a six-month high of 9.6 per cent in September.

The government agency reported that higher fuel oil and gasoline prices coupled with increased clothing prices forced up the consumer price index almost a full percentage point which in turn boosted the inflation rate to 9.6 per cent.

This is the highest level since April when the 12-month inflation rate stood at 9.8 per cent.

At the moment, Canada's inflation level is below those of many of the non-Communist world powers. In Britain for example, latest figures show prices rising at 16 per cent a year, inflation in the United States is now running at more than 12 per cent a year and France is reporting a 10.5-per-cent annual increase in its cost of living.

The government increased crude oil prices by a $1 to $13.75 a barrel in August and less than a month later gas prices at the pump climbed by about four cents a gallon, hovering around $1.

"This increase is government made and is a direct result of higher energy costs and the govenment's $1-a-barrel increase," said New Democratic Party finance critic Bob Rae.

"If the government is really serious about fighting inflation, and they say it is their number one priority, then they should stop this forced march to world prices," said the Toronto MP.

Liberal finance critic Herb Gray demanded "the government change their direction immediately and abandon plans to increase the price of gasoline to a $1.30 a gallon."

Prime Minister Joe Clark and Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn are reported to be trying to hammer out an energy deal with Alberta to increase fuel oil and gasoline prices in exchange for an increase in the oil excise tax.

Hnatyshyn refuses to confirm or deny the reports and says he will be announcing an oil pricing agreement as soon as possible.

Statistics Canada's consumer price index, which the government uses as its most common measure of inflation, stood last month at 194.5. This means a so-called basket of goods and services — devised by the agency to represent the spending of a typical household — would have cost $100 in 1971 but now costs $194.50.

The higher energy prices, higher rents and mortgages plus increased prices for electricity, domestic gas and for local transit and taxi fares were responsible for forcing the index, excluding food, up by 1.1 per cent last month.

Specials on selected air fares and for new 1979 North American model cars prevented the non-food index from climbing more than 8.6 per cent, an increase from the 8.3 per cent registered in the previous 12 months.

Lower prices for fresh fruit and vegetables resulted in a marginal 0.2 per cent increase in the food index in September following a decline of 0.7 per cent a month earlier.

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Energy Department, adopting the generally pessimistic outlook for world oil supplies espoused by the CIA, has drastically increased it estimate of how fast prices will rise during the next decade.

In a new estimate presented to Congress Wednesday, the department projected that by 1985 world oil prices may rise by as much as 50 per cent in "real" dollars — that is, over and above the general inflation rate.

By 1990, according to what the department called its "most likely" predictions, "real" world oil prices will increase by at least 30 per cent and perhaps as much as 90 per cent.

In addition to direct effects on consumer prices, the new estimate has far-reaching implications for President Carter's energy proposals now being considered by Congress, as the projected price increases are significantly higher than had been assumed until now.

As if to punctuate the gloomy forecast, oil industry reported today that Iraq has raised the price of its oil about 10 per cent, becoming the fifth member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to announce a price increase in recent days.

The Iraqi move itself probably will have no direct effect on prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States as Iraq sells mostlt to Japan and Europe, but the combined impact of it and the other increases probably will add a penny or two a gallon at the gasoline pump and on heating bills.

Energy Department analysts revealed their new estimate at a House intelligence subcommittee hearing called to compare their previous forecast of world oil trends with the latest CIA forecast.

The just-declassified CIA estimate, based on a judgment that members of the OPEC cartel will constrain production during the early 1980s, predicted world demand will outrun supply by 1982. An Energy Department projection, prepared last December and released in July, assumed that OPEC production would increase to meet demand through the decade.

But the department analysts said Wednesday they had revised their previous estimate.

Also Wednesday, after months of wrangling, the Senate overwhelmingly approved legislation giving the White House standby gasoline rationing authority in a severe crisis. The measure now goes back to the House, where a closer vote is expected.

The legislation is aimed only to be used in the event of a major crisis and falls far short of the broad mandate the president had originally sought.

Meanwhile, a British journalist says Middle Eastern oil exporting countries are lying when they say reduced production is forcing them to keep increasing the price of oil.

Jon Kimche, an expert on the Middle East, said in a telephone interview from Dorking, England, there now is more oil than the market can absorb and "oil tankers are again getting instructions to steam slowly because there's nowhere to put the oil."

Kimche, interviewed for the CBC Radio program As It Happens, said oil production by most OPEC countries is up markedly from last year despite recent reports to the contrary.

"We get reports now from one OPEC country or another of cutting back supplies . . . but they are not cutting back at all and have no intention of cutting back."

He said the major oil companies in the West are going along with the deception "because . . . their revenue figures . . . have gone beyond all dreams."

Boston buses stoned

BOSTON (AP) — White students overturned two cars and stoned two school buses carrying black students in East Boston today and dozens of white youths marched on city hall in the third straight day of racial violence involving city high school students.

Police said the first fracas began when the buses were stoned before classes opened at East Boston High School. Further violence erupted when about 150 white students marched out of school to protest a racial incident Wednesday and to demand more security at the school, officers said.

Windows also were smashed on two police cars, and three students from East Boston High were arrested, authorities said. The school has about 1,200 students, 80 per cent of them white.

The marchers were met at city hall by a line of 25 policemen wearing riot gear who blocked them from entering the building.

East Boston, an Italian-American neighborhood, has been largely unaffected by court-ordered "busing" that has disrupted schools in the other parts of the city for the last five years. Under the busing order, students are transported by bus to other school districts to achieve racial integration.

Police to probe fake letters

By PAUL NICHOLSON

Attorney-General Garde Gardom Wednesday instructed Victoria city police to investigate allegations of forged letters-to-the-editor to the Victoria newspapers.

Gardom made the announcement in a terse press release with little explanation.

"Questions have been raised concerning an alleged forgery which appeared in Victoria newspapers," Gardom said.

"I wish to advise that after consultation with the assistant deputy minister, criminal justice division, the Victoria city police force has been instructed to carry out an investigation into these allegations."

Gardom was referring to a letter published by the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist March 20 over the name of Gordon Townsend which was highly critical of the NDP.

Townsend, a regular writer to the two newspapers and an ardent NDP supporter, immediately disassociated himself from the letter and both newspaprs printed apologies.

At the time he resigned, Greig was on loan to the provincial secretary's ministry working as an information officer.

Greig has refused to comment on his resignation or the forged letter either to the press or during a personal appeal from Bennett.

He would say only that he resigned for personal reasons.

Arnett, now in private consulting business, called a press conference to denounce angrily allegations by Vancouver Sun columnist Marjorie Nichols that he was present when one phoney letter-to-the editor plot was discussed.

Nichols made the allegation in a column.

Nichols said sources told her three other persons were present when the phoney letter scheme was hatched and named Jack Kelly (the caucus re-

Gift of the gab job search asset

TORONTO (CP) — The most important asset a job-hunter can have is the gift of gab, a national survey of major Canadian employers says.

The University and College Placement Association — which helps Canada's 150,000 annual university and college graduates find jobs — issued the survey results Wednesday, detailing the qualities that employers seek.

"Marks are often the last thing they look at," said Wayne Gartley, the association's executive director. "They're looking for an all-round kind of person."

Topping the list was the ability to communicate, followed by willingness to take initiative and accept responsibility. Leadership potential and motivation also ranked high.

Intelligence was listed as the sixth most important quality, preceded by ability to communicate, willingness to take initiative, willingness to accept responsibility, leadership potential, and ambition.

Bill gives pension to surviving spouse

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would allow a spouse to continue receiving an allowance after the other pensioner spouse dies was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by Health Minister David Crombie.

The allowance now terminates six months after the death of the spouse receiving old age security payments. It is paid to persons between 60 and 65 years of age.

The government wants to ensure that widows and widowers are protected in the event of a spouse's death until the survivor becomes eligible for regular old age security payments.

The bill would also remove the imprisonment test so benefits to pensioners and their spouses would not be interrupted if one were sentenced to prison.

Crombie has said he wants to see better provisions for single women and those living alone when, for example, a spouse is sentenced to prison.

The estimated cost of the extra benefits is $4.6 million.

Also, Veterans Affairs Minister Allan McKinnon said earlier Wednesday in the Commons the government will soon introduce legislation to broaden the pension benefits for widows of disable veterans.

He said the bill will go part way to meeting demands for widows of veterans with 48-per-cent disability pensions or less.

Meantime, a statement from the health department which accompanied the bill introduced Wednesday, said more than 2,200 persons would receive the spouses allowance benefits.

RCMP officer lied — judge

Judge Gilbert Hogg made the accusation before dismissing a charge of obstructing a peace officer against the 53-year-old owner of the Sidney Hotel.

Roland Paquette was charged following an incident Oct. 5, 1978, in the beer parlor of his hotel. One of two RCMP officers who entered the establishment claimed he was grabbed by Paquette.

"Constable Bottrell completely destroyed himself on cross-examination," the judge continued. "In my opinion, that officer lied in the witness box and I reject his evidence totally.

"I cannot understand how this charge got beyond the prosecutors' office," he said.

At one point during the trial, Hogg directed that a transcript of a portion of Bottrell's testimony be sent to Attorney-General Garde Gardom as well as to Bottrell's superintendent.

The order was made in connection with questioning by defence lawyer H.A.D. Oliver of Vancouver concerning words used by Bottrell to Paquette following the morning adjournment.

At one point, the deputy sheriff on duty in the courtroom was put on the stand to testify as to what Bottrell said. Oliver also requested the judge read the perjury section of the Criminal Code of Canada to Bottrell during the questioning.

"The remark Bottrell was alleged to have made to Paquette was 'I hope you pay a lot for this lawyer, Rollie.' "

Paquette said the incident which resulted in the charge occurred about 10:30 p.m. when the pub was nearly full with 235 people. He said he was seated with about half a dozen members of the local Rotary Club when he saw one RCMP officer come in through the back door and another through the front. Paquette testified he went up to one of the officers and asked why they were there and, despite repeated questioning, was never answered.

Paquette denied that one

New York

Stock prices rose in moderate trading this afternoon, led by sharp gains in oil issues and buoyed by encouraging quarterly profit reports from some other sectors.

A number of oil issues posted gains of a point or more in active trading, in what Eugene Nowak, an analyst at Blyth Eastman Dillon described as a strong rebound from the market's recent slide.

Mobil rose 1⅛ to $48⅞; Exxon gained 1¼ to $58½; Union Oil of California rose 1½ to $48½ and Lousiana Land Exploration added 2 to $46⅞, all in active trading.

In addition to their recent losses in a seven-day slide that ended with the market's first modest gain on Wednesday, a number of analysts say the push in oil stocks also is tied to expectations that quarterly profit reports, due next wee, will be exceptionally strong.

Chemical firms also were generally higher following favorable earning reports from a number of companies earlier this week. Du Pont rose ½ to $40⅞, Union Carbide was up ¼ to $40¾ and Allied Chemical rose ⅛ to $42½.

London

Oil issues were firm while other equities were lower due to lack of interest on the London stock market today.

The Financial Times Index was down 2.8 to 469.5 an hour before the close of trading.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission

BRITISH COLUMBIA TELEPHONE COMPANY, PREFERRED SHARES ISSUE

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission has received an application from British Columbia Telephone Company (B.C.Tel) for approval of the issue of Cumulative Redeemable Preferred Shares to Canadian Telephones and Supplies Ltd. (CT&S), a wholly owned subsidiary of B.C.Tel, pursuant to an agreement whereby B.C.Tel would purchase from CT&S the Class "A" common shares of 70,074 Limited.

The sole business and asset of 70,074 Limited is that of the ownership and management of B.C.Tel's head office building in Burnaby, B.C. In order to acquire direct control of 70,074 Limited, B.C.Tel will purchase its voting shares from CT&S for the estimated fair market value of $3.8 million. To achieve a "tax free rollover" of the shares from CT&S to B.C.Tel, B.C.Tel shares must be issued to CT&S as consideration, and an election pursuant to Section 85 of the Income Tax Act must later be filed with Revenue Canada.

As a result of these transactions and the consequent application of Section 88 of the Income Tax Act, B.C.Tel would hold the head office building and land, would have the capability to claim capital cost allowance on the building, and would be able to use as deductions against its own income the tax losses of 70,074 Limited. B.C.Tel estimates that if the application is approved in 1979, the present value of the cash tax savings to it will amount to $3.9 million.

The application and accompanying documents are available for public inspection during normal business hours at the offices of B.C.Tel, 5th Floor, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, B.C., and 826 Yates Street, Victoria, B.C., and at the offices of the CRTC, Suite 1103, 701 West Georgia Street, Vancouver, B.C. and 5th Floor, Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudière, 1 Promenade du Portage, Hull, Quebec.

Interventions

Any interested person or association who wishes to comment on this application may do so by mailing or delivering by hand a letter of intervention to the Commission with a copy thereof to B.C.Tel. The mailing addresses to be used are: Mr. J.G. Patenaude, Acting Secretary General, CRTC, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N2; and Mr. K.D.A. Morrison, Vice-President, General Counsel and Secretary, 21st Floor, 3777 Kingsway, Burnaby, B.C., V5H 3Z7. In the case of delivery by hand, the locations listed above for public inspection of documents should be used.

A letter of intervention should clearly state the intervener's views regarding the application together with any relevant information that may be useful in explaining or supporting those views. It may also include a statement of intention to appear at a public hearing should one be held. In order to be considered, all interventions must actually be received by B.C.Tel and the Commission on or before 8 November, 1979.

Similarly, copies of replies from B.C.Tel to any interventions must actually be received by the interveners concerned and by the Commission on or before 15 November, 1979.

Procedures to be followed

Depending on the nature of the interventions and replies received within the time periods set out above, the Commission will determine whether or not a public hearing will be held to deal with the application. If the Commission determines that a public hearing is necessary, it will take place on 26 November, 1979 at an exact time and location to be specified by the Commission. All persons or associations who have expressed an interest in the application will be notified by the Commission should a public hearing be convened.

The Commission will render a decision on or before 6, December 1979.

J.G. Patenaude
Acting Secretary General
